KOCH'S DISCOVERY.—The tubercle baccilli were discovered by Prof. Koch, to be constantly present in all cases of consumption. Where the blood is impoverished or impure, there results that constitutional condition known as scrofula, which is characterized by the liability of certain tissues to become the seat of chronic inflammations. The trouble may start as catarrh in the nasal passages, throat or lungs, and as the membranes become weakened, the tubercle baccilli enter, and multiply, and we have, as a result, that dread disease—Consumption. Find a perfect remedy for scrofula, in all its forms—something that purifies the blood, as well as claims to. That, if it's taken in time, will cure Consumption. It has been found in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. As a strength-restorer, blood-cleanser, and flesh-builder, nothing like it is known to medical science. It's the only remedy so sure that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, your money is refunded.

SALUTE THE FLAG.

Such is the Demand of the United States

Made on the Government of Chile.

No Half-Way Business Will Be Tolerated.

Another Ultimatum on the Cable.

The Great Anxiety of the Past Few Days at Santiago Has Passed Away and Everything is Now Tranquil.

New York, Jan. 30.—The Herald's Washington special correspondent telegraphs:

President Harrison will send this morning another ultimatum to the little South American republic. In substance this cable was sent from here at an early hour yesterday morning:

"Egan, Santiago, Chile—President Harrison accepts Chile's apology in the broad and generous spirit in which it was offered.

(Signed) "BLAINE."

And a cable to this effect will follow:

"Egan, Santiago, Chile—While Chile's apology is, in terms, all that this country could ask, yet there is one thing more to be done before the dignity of the United States will be fully satisfied. Chile must salute the Stars and Stripes.

(Signed) "BLAINE."

Such was the decision of the meeting of the cabinet yesterday afternoon.

The first cable—that is, the one accepting the apology—also states that the matter of an indemnity to the families of the two sailors who were killed and the fourteen others who were wounded in the Valparaiso affair can be settled by the two governments without reference to arbitration.

The second cable, or the one demanding that the Stars and Stripes be honored, informs Minister Egan that a salute to the national colors will give emphasis and expression to Pereira's apology, which will make it doubly gratifying to the people of this country, and he is to understand that this government will insist upon it.

FROM SANTIAGO.

Everybody Seems To Rejoice That the Trouble is Settled.

New York, Jan. 30.—The Herald's Santiago dispatch says: A cable dispatch from Minister Pedro Montt, at Washington, was received yesterday morning, repeating the text of President Harrison's message to congress, accompanying Chile's reply to the ultimatum of the United States. Minister Montt adds that he is now assured that the United States is favorably disposed toward Chile and is content with Minister Pereira's reply.

Senor Montt's dispatch was read at the session of the senate yesterday afternoon. The dispatch said nothing as to future arbitration and indemnity. Chile, however, will pay whatever indemnity is agreed upon.

There is no doubt but that up to yesterday the utmost anxiety prevailed at both Santiago and Valparaiso, but this has now been relieved and expressions of satisfaction are heard on all sides at the peaceful solution of the trouble.

Naval officers would gladly see the United States squadron again in Chilean waters and renew old acquaintances.

Minister Egan yesterday received a number of callers who congratulated him on the successful termination of the negotiations.

Sentence will be passed to-day by Judge of Crimes Foster upon Gomez, Ahumada and others for the killing of Riggin and Turnbull and assaulting the members of the Baltimore's crew.

A TALE FROM LUCERNE.

A Handsome Young Bride of a Few Weeks

Dies From Grief Over a False Report

Of the Death of Her Husband Sent to Her, it is Alleged, by a Former Suitor Whom She Had Discarded.

Paris, Jan. 30.—A tragic affair is reported from Lucerne. A young French woman whose beauty and other good qualities attracted many suitors, accepted as a husband an English naval officer. The husband, after a brief honeymoon, was summoned abroad, and joined his vessel on a voyage to the east.

He left his bride at Lucerne, promising a speedy return. Not long ago his bride received a telegram telling her that her husband had died of the cholera in India. The blow caused her brain to reel, and the friends who hastened to console her, found that she was mad.

She continually raved about her dead husband, and cried out for him to return to life. Her insanity took a suicidal tendency, and she poisoned herself with cyanide. She died and was buried at Lucerne.

The wife had been dead but a few days when her husband, hearty and well as when he left her, made his appearance at the dwelling where they had spent happy days together. The people were astonished when they saw him and at first thought he had come back from the dead.

When convinced that he was really alive they hesitated to tell him the truth. At length one summoned the courage to confess to the husband, now himself mad with fear, that his bride was dead. Wild with grief he demanded to be taken to her grave. He was escorted there and shown the little mound which still bore the fresh marks of the grave digger's spade.

The husband threw himself on the grave and burst into a passion of grief. At first it was feared that his reason, too, would give way. When he had gradually recovered, they told him the story of the telegram, with the news of his death.

He exclaimed that he knew who had sent the cruel message, that it must be a former suitor for the hand of his wife, who had shown bitter disappointment, and threatened revenge.

He mentioned the name of this person and the authorities are quietly ascertaining whether there is evidence to justify proceedings. The husband declares that he will not rest until his wife's murderer, as he calls the person whom he suspects, is brought to justice.

RUSSIA'S STARVING PEOPLE

Count Tolstoi Tells of Their Condition.

They Are Classified According to the Number of Horses They Own—Three Grades of Suffering.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 30.—In a letter to the government Count Leo Tolstoi declares that the relief distribution of flour is inadequate in method to meet the needs of the situation.

He says there are three types of peasants. The first of these is relatively well-to-do, having 12 acres of land and probably four horses, and those next in possession less land and two horses.

Over the second class, those with the two horses, the sword of famine is continually suspended, and they must be helped to keep them from sinking to the level of the third and lowest class, who are actually starving, and for whom lack of assistance means death.

The government is, however, only helping the lowest class assuming apparently that no aid should be given to those who have a remnant of property left.

Count Tolstoi thinks this policy wrong, and that the second class, on the verge of absolue want, should be prevented from falling over the brink.

CONSPIRACY TO ROB.

New York, Jan. 30.—Frank C. Collins, 21 years of age, a trusted employe of Traitel & Bros., jewelers, of 499 Fifth avenue, was arrested yesterday for robbing the firm of pins and rings valued at several thousand dollars. The stolen property was found in Collins' room. Collins confessed and implicated Albert Harris, a salesman, and John Murphy, a bartender, who were arrested and some of the stolen jewelry was found in their possession.

A COSTLY QUARREL.

Philadelphia, Jan. 30.—John Schweitzer and Robert Shirlock, who several weeks ago picked a quarrel on the street with Wm. Wiley, with whom they had no previous acquaintance, and brutally beat and kicked him to death, were today sentenced by Judge Arnold to imprisonment in the Eastern penitentiary for five years each.

A GIRL WITH NERVE.

She Fired at the Man Who Entered Her Father's Home.

Glens Falls., Jan. 30.—Delia, the 17-year-old daughter of Wm. C. Trudeau, while reading in the lower portion of the Trudeau home, Thursday night, heard a noise in the shed connected with the house.

Her father had that afternoon gone to Providence and drawn out of the bank a large sum of money and Delia at once thought of burglars.

She seized a loaded gun and opened the door leading to the shed, just as the form of a burly man entered from the outside. The plucky girl fired and probably hit the would-be burglar, as blood was found in the snow leading from the house for some distance.

JEWS ON A FARM.

Anniston, Ala., Jan. 30.—The Anniston Land company, which owns the Blue Mountain farm, just north of here, is having the property divided up into tract farms of 10 acres each and will invite Russian Jews to come over and settle on them. The tract to be divided consists of about 2,000 acres and the farms will be sold or rented, as desired.

A ROUND WITH CHINA.

Uncle Sam Should Keep Up His Motion.

John Russell Young Talks on the Rejection of H. W. Blair as Minister.

Washington, Jan. 30.—John Russell Young, ex-minister to China, who is visiting Washington, last night discussed Senator Morgan's resolution asking for the correspondence with China over the rejection by that country of ex-Senator Blair as minister.

He expressed surprise at China's action and said it was unfortunate for our prestige. In fact, Mr. Blair had shown himself conspicuous among our public men for his sympathies with China. There was no good reason for his rejection.

The idea that it could have been Mr. Blair's votes in favor of the restrictions bills that caused China's action was spoken of by Mr. Young as absurd. He declared that the China rulers are ready to approve even severer restraints on the emigration of their subjects than we have ever imposed.

The Chinese are more opposed to having their subjects leave their country than we are to receive them. This fact was made plain in the correspondence between the viceroy of Canton and Sir John Pope Hennessy, British governor of Hong Kong, in the Peruvian coolie case.

Mr. Young regretted that this correspondence could not be printed and furnished to senators and others for their information. Then it would be seen that there was no need to make the emigration question a source of international trouble. Mr. Young thinks rather than waste our energies in the poverty stricken countries of South America we should awaken to the fact that we are the nearest neighbor of the most populous, the oldest and perhaps richest country in the world and that in a generous commercial policy lies the splendor and power of our Pacific states.

This would furnish a diplomatic situation worthy of our highest genius. Mr. Young added that he had tried to impress this idea upon both Mr. Bayard and Mr. Blaine in times past but owing to various domestic political considerations it had been ignored. Mr. Young claims that his views on this subject are in line with those entertained by the late Anson Burlingame and Gen. U. S. Grant, whose opportunities for forming correct judgments regarding the Chinese were unsurpassed.

RESENTED THE INSULT.

An American Fights for his Flag.

The Stars and Stripes Found a Ready Defender in the Person of P. Hughes Finley in Mexico.

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 30.—Mr. P. Hughes Finley, a well known society gentleman of this city, has just returned from Mexico and is suffering from a rapier wound on the thigh.

The story is current that while at Chepultapec, Mex., he fought a duel with a Mexican officer, who had offered an insult to the United States, and ran the Spaniard through the body with his rapier.

The duel is alleged to have occurred on the 24th inst. Mr. Finley's second was an officer in the Mexican army. His antagonist, it is asserted, is the finest swordsman in the Mexican army, and the American expected to be killed. Fortune favored him, however, and he made a lunge at the Mexican that placed him hors du combat.

Mr. Finley declines to make public the names of the Mexican duelist, the seconds or surgeons. He claims he was traveling for pleasure in Mexico and was making a sketch of the ruins of the famous battlefield where the insult was given which caused the duel.

THE PARTY IS DEAD.

The Farmer Political Movement in Ohio Is a Corpse.

Tiffin, O., Jan. 30.—This county being in one sense the official center of the late farmers' political movement in this state, the condition of the alliance and people's party here ought to be taken as an indication of its vitality throughout the Buckeye commonwealth.

The great movement which was to do such damage to the old parties last fall is ether dead or it is in a hibernating condition between campaigns.

At the last meeting of the county alliance the only members who were present were the secretary and Hon. John Seitz. Dr. Barnes and his organ, the Plow and Hammer, are true to their past professions, but their influence is no more potent than the pure and simple greenbackism into which they have long since merged.

WABASH MORTGAGE.

Goshen, Ind., Jan. 30.—A mortgage of $3,500,000 was recorded yesterday by the Wabash railroad in favor of the Central Trust company of New York. The money will be used in constructing an extension of the road from Montpelier to Chicago.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Another Terrible Tale From the Northwest.

A Father Returns Home to Find His Wife and Three Babies Burned to a Crisp.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 30.—Four miles west of Brainerd, Minn., yesterday four persons were burned to death.

George Cramer's house caught fire and his wife and three children were cremated.

The husband was away but saw the fire and found the burned bodies. The bodies lay in the cellar together burned beyond recognition. Cramer is nearly crazy with grief. The only theory advanced is that the house took fire under the floor, that Mrs. Cramer was outside and on discovering it rushed in to save the children and all fell to the cellar. The woman was 26 years old. The children were aged 4 and 2 years and the baby one month.

SENTENCED TO DEATH.

The Most Brutal Murders of Modern Times.

Disclosures in Court Almost Beyond Belief.

The Criminal Pages of Austria Blotted by a Crime the Equal of Which is Rarely Known or Printed.

Vienna, Jan. 30.—The sensational Schneider murder trial has ended. The defense, if defense it can be called, where the accused go on the stand and by their evidence corroborate the testimony of the prosecution, closed and the case was given to the jury.

The jurors required only 70 minutes to find Schneider guilty of all the murders charged against him and a verdict against Frau Schneider for the murder of Vincenzia Zouffar. The judge immediately sentenced both prisoners to death. Both executions will take place on the same day, but Frau Schneider will be executed first.

For cold-blooded cruelty this case stands almost without parallel in the annals of crime in this city. Some months ago the police became habituated to receiving reports of the mysterious disappearance of young girls who earned their livelihood in the capacity of servants.

These reports came with such startling frequency that the police decided that more was in the case than appeared on the surface. They therefore adopted extraordinary measures to learn what had become of the missing girls.

It came to the knowledge of the authorities, after a long and patient investigation, that a number of girls had been employed by Franz Schneider and his wife, Rosalie, and that after they had been at work for a short time they would disappear and never be heard of again.

All the evidence obtainable pointed in the direction of the Schneiders as having knowledge of the fate of the girls, and finally they were placed under arrest on the charge of murdering eight of their servants.

Their trial has been proceeding for several days and for brutal and sensational developments it stands without comparison. It was shown that the prisoners, on the pretext of employing the girls, had enticed them to their home.

Once there their fate was sealed. The evidence against the accused was overwhelming, but Frau Schneider until yesterday stoutly maintained that her husband was alone responsible for the death of the girls.

Schneider was confronted on Tuesday with the skull and hair of one of his victims, Rosalie Kleinrath, and with the torn clothing she had worn at the time of her death. This ghastly exhibit had a great effect on Schneider, who broke down completely and confessed his guilt.

He describes in detail his method of doing away with the girls. He would go to the room occupied by the girl last employed by his wife and despite her prayers and entreaties would criminally assault her. It was thought by the police that he at first chloroformed his victims, but in his confession Schneider said that they were always conscious when he attacked them.

Horrible as it may appear, his wife accompanied him and aided him in the accomplishment of this fiendish crime and afterwards she would grasp the hands of the victim while Schneider clutched the poor girl by the throat and choked her to death. The same course was pursued in the case of all the eight victims.

After the girls were dead Schneider and his wife would convey the bodies to a wood close to their home, where they would strip their victims of their clothing, which together with the contents of the girl's luggage, they would afterwards sell. Mrs. Schneider yesterday, who had all along claimed that she had no part in the murders, broke down and confessed her complicity in the crimes. The prosecution proved that she herself had killed Vincenzia Zouffar, but it is not known whether or not this victim was outraged by Schneider before she was killed.

A peculiarity of the crowd which frequented the court room was that it was not composed entirely of men, as is usually the case in murder trials here, where women, unless they are witnesses or connections of prisoners, do not attend such trials. The Schneiders' trial, however, has been marked by the presence of a very large number of stylishly-dressed ladies, who leveled their lorgnettes and closely scanned the features of the prisoners.

Some of the evidence was of a nature to bring a blush to most any cheek, but these ladies, though some of them did blush at certain parts of the testimony, were so eager to hear every word of the outrages, murderers and robberies, that they conquered their natural inclination to leave the court room and, gaining courage from the many women present, they remained and had their curiosity gratified.

The public prosecutor in his speech against the prisoners gave a most vivid description of the fiendish character of the crimes and he dealt at great length upon the crudty, heartlessness and lack of womanly feeling manifested by Frau Schneider in enticing the girls to her home, where she knew death would be their fate.

He dwelt, too, upon the perverted nature of the woman which had led her to become an accomplice of her husband in the gratification of his animal passions and induced her to take advantage of her sex to procure victims to his lust.

There was a great sensation in the court room when, at the conclusion of the speech, the public prosecutor straightened himself and pointing with outstretched arm at Schneider, exclaimed in a loud tone: "He is a doomed man."

Throughout the terrible arraignment of the prisoners by the public prosecutor Schneider sat with his head clasped in his hands and showed no emotion whatever. His wife, though she listened closely to the scathing words applied to her, remained perfectly cool and unmoved. When the death sentence was passed upon them they showed no fear, but listened to the fateful words with an air amounting almost to indifference.

GRAVES ENCOURAGED.

Denver, Col., Jan. 30.—Dr. Graves has not been feeling well the last few days owing to his having over eaten, but he slept well last night, and when the news reached him at Canon City that the supreme court had granted him a supersedeas on his attorney's writ of error he jumped to his feet much delighted. He feels sure that he will now obtain a new trial.

COL. ANNIE BAXTER.

Springfield, Mo., Jan. 30.—The election contest of Julius C. Fischer against Mrs. Annie W. Baxter terminated in the circuit court here yesterday, when the court rendered a decision that Fischer was not entitled to maintain action and had no right or title to the office of county clerk of Jasper county, as Mrs. Baxter received a plurality of the legal votes cast at the last election. Judgment was given in favor of Mrs. Baxter, and to recover costs of Fischer.

M'CULLOUGH'S SUCCESSOR.

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 30.—It is stated that Gashton Meslier has been appointed general passenger and ticket agent of the Texas Pacific railway to fill the vacancy caused by the death of B. W. McCullough. Mr. Meslier's headquarters are to be in Dallas. He was formerly general passenger agent of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas.

FIELD, LINDLEY & CO.

The Firm Is Still the Subject of Much Comment.

New York, Jan. 30.—Another complication in the affairs of the failed firm of Field, Lindley, Wiechers & Co., came to light yesterday in the allegation that representatives of the Union Pacific railroad had been allowed to examine the firm's books.

District Attorney Nicoll admits that the books were shown to Union Pacific men, but claims a like privilege was open to all others who had claims against the firm.

Dr. Allison, of Auburn, the insanity expert, had a long talk with Field yesterday, but refused to divulge his opinion of the case.

TABOR MUST PAY UP.

Denver, Col., Jan. 30.—The suit of the Kaiser Gold Mines company (limited) of England, against ex-Senator Tabor, was closed yesterday in United States court by verdict in favor of the company for $16.520. The company claimed $20,000.

RAILROAD CHANGE.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 30.—M. B. Cutter, who has been general superintendent of the western division of the Newport News & Mississippi Valley railroad has been appointed general superintendent of the Louisville, New Orleans & Texas, with headquarters at Memphis.

LAUGHED HIMSELF TO DEATH.

Ft. Dodge, Ia., Jan. 30.—Henning Peterson, a tailor, listened to a comic song Thursday evening and was so tickled that his laughter became unmanageable and at the end of an hour he was completely exhausted. He became insensible and has not yet revived. It is thought he will die.

WAS LOOKING FOR TROUBLE

And He Found it, as is Usually the Case.

A Sister-in-Law Gossipped and Was Snubbed, Brother-in-Law Took It Up and Was Shot.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 30.—One woman's tongue led to a tragedy here, a well-known young banker shooting to the death his brother-in-law, John H. Craig, one of the most prominent men in the city, married some months ago the daughter of August Flesh, proprietor of the biggest bottling establishment in the south. Flesh has a son Theodore, who is a black sheep. Some time ago young Flesh married and for a while all was serene. However, the wife of Flesh soon began to do some talking about her husband's sister, which reached the ears of the latter's husband. Last night Mrs. Flesh took occasion to call on Mrs. Craig, and Craig, who came in, refused to recognize his sister-in-law. The woman scorned told her husband the story of her brother-in-law's snub, and Theodore Flesh set out to avenge the fanced wrong. He first fortified himself with a supply of whisky, then with a pistol. He chose Craig's dinner hour as the time for his visit. When Flesh drove up to Craig's house, Mrs. Flesh, the mother of one of the young men and mother-in-law of the other, saw her son coming, and, anticipating trouble, locked all the doors. Flesh secured an axe and cut his way through the back door. Craig and his wife were in their room, having locked themselves in. Flesh rushed to that room, paying no attention to his mother's prayers. In a minute he had cut through this door and was advancing with axe uplifted on Craig, when the later drew a pistol and fired twice. The first bullet took effect in Flesh's neck and the second in his abdomen. He will die.

KILLED BY A BLOW.

Sad Termination of a Camden Drunk.

Edward Daugherty Attacked a Man and Received a Return on the Ear From Which He Died.

Camden, N. J., Jan. 30.—Edward Dougherty, of 819 Fern street, a young man about 25 years of age, died at his home in this city early this morning from a blow on the ear delivered by George Canton, employed by dry goods merchant John Chew, of Market street.

At five o'clock last evening Dougherty, who was drunk, was accompanied by his brother and John McDevitt. As they passed Mr. Chew's store, a salesman named Watson was out sweeping off the pavement. One of the trio said to the salesman, "What the h—l are you looking at?" The salesman made an indifferent reply. In an instant Edward Dougherty struck Watson a blow in the mouth.

Then Canton ran out of the store to defend Watson and knocked Dougherty down. Dougherty was removed in the patrol in an unconscious condition.

It was not thought he was badly hurt, as he soon after regained consciousness. His death this morning was a surprise to every one. No arrests were made last evening, as the officials are of opinion that the whole thing was a row occasioned by Dougherty while drunk.

This morning the police arrested Canton, and the county physician will hold a post mortem.

RAISES A PROTEST.

France in Another Journalistic Squabble.

Justin Marengo Taken From a Sick Bed

And Forced to Leave French Territory.

He Appeals to France to Right His Wrongs.

Full Details of a Case Which Will Cause More Talk in International Circles Than Did the Chadouine Incident.

Paris, Jan. 30.—France is no sooner out of one journalistic scrape than she is into another.

Hardly has she scrambled out of the unpleasant position she thoughtlessly placed herself in by protesting against the expulsion from Bulgaria of a French newspaper man, M. Chadouine, than she expels a journalist, M. Justin Marengo, of the Latin-Catholic community, known as Francs, from her territory in, apparently, the most outrageous manner, by order of the minister of the interior, M. Constans.

If the account given of the affray by M. Marengo is correct, the agents of M. Constans have acted in a more high-handed manner than did the agents of M. Stambuloff.

M. Marengo has appealed to M. De Freycinet, president of the council, protesting against his expulsion from France and demanding that he be allowed to return.

In his letter to the French premier, M. Marengo recalled the fact that it was through him that the Moniteur Oriental, of Constantinople, became a Franco-Russian organ, and the sole controversial exponent of French ideas against the hostility of the other powers; through the Moniteur Oriental, M. Marengo, it would appear, fought against English influence in the east.

M. Marengo, it would also seem, for some reason, left the staff of the Moniteur Oriental and came to this city, where he edited a paper which attacked Turkey and advocated forcing Abdul Hamid to renew the constitution of Midhad Pasha, and it is presumed he was expelled from France on demand of the sultan.

M. Marengo is now petitioning to have this sentence of expulsion commuted and to be allowed to return to France, and his request is being considered by the French government to the extent of consulting the wishes of the porte in the matter.

M. Marengo's expulsion took place on Jan. 9th, but the facts in the case have only recently become public. The following is M. Marengo's account of the affair:

"This is the story of my expulsion, which took place without the slightest previous warning:

"On Jan. 9th, 1892, at 8 in the evening, two police officers appeared at my house, No. 54 Rue de la Victoire, and requested me to follow them to the district commissary of police, who had a 'little communication to make to me.'

"'Your husband will not be away more than a quarter of an hour at the most,' they said to my wife, who wished to prevent me from going out, as I had been ill for a week. Arrived at the commissarial, the secretary immediately informed me, on the part of his chief, M. Genin, that I was to be 'expelled,' as 'a man dangerous to the public peace.'

"When I protested the secretary contented himself with replying that I should have time enough to make all necessary explanations to the prefect of police. The two officers above mentioned then took me to the prefecture with all the common prisoners arrested that morning.

"I was even hit violently to allow any arms which I might have about me to fall. I was then brutally shut up in a cold, wet cell. From that they took me to the measuring department where, after being almost entirely undressed and made to stand on the cold floor in my bare feet, I was forced to wait my turn to be examined, photographed, measured, etc. Finally I was taken back to my cell, 'near Anasteys,' (the murderer of Baroness Dellard) said an officer.

"Thence I was taken out again at about 5 o'clock in order to be put aboard the first train going to Belgium. At 11 o'clock at night when we reached Mons, the two detectives who accompanied me, suddenly informed me—it was snowing—that I was free.

"This punishment had lasted 15 hours. I beg to call your attention, sir, that I was just getting over an illness, following an attack of influenza, which had kept me in bed, and that I was not suitably dressed for traveling in such severe cold weather without endangering my life.

"I might have had to sleep in the open air at Mons had I not fortunately had with me a little money. As it was, indeed, on reaching Brussels I felt seriously ill and it is only to-day—a week after my expulsion—that I have been strong enough to draw up with difficulty this protest to inform you of the outrageous and inhuman proceedings, like the acts of an earlier age, employed in a country which only the other day made a great stir about the expulsion of M. Chadouine, correspondent of the Havas agency at Sofia.

"M. Chadouine was expelled violently and illegally I admit. But he was not so knocked about, so maltreated as I. Moreover, he had been warned beforehand on several occasions.

"As for me I was simply carried off. I was not allowed an hour to see my wife again, to attend to my affairs, to provide myself with money or my papers, etc. And, again, there is no analogy between the Chadouine case and mine.

"I repeat it, sir, I have never attacked France or any of her public men. I have been merely busy with eastern affairs—in particular with Turkish—which I know completely. The only plausible explanation that I have so far had of my case is that my expulsion was asked for by the sublime porte.

"It would seem that the sultan had demanded it as a sine qua non to forcing Bulgaria to grant some sort of satisfaction to France in the Chadouine affair.

"I refuse to believe in this version, although it reaches me through several deputies who have kindly intervened for me with M. Constans.

"But even if this be true there was no necessity for maltreating me; it would have been enough to appeal to me personally; I would willingly have sacrificed myself for the dignity of France or its government."

This party includes the highest newspaper talent on earth and Toledo deservedly paid honor to them with a reception well worthy of the city's good name for hospitality. The arrangements and program as printed in the Bee were carried out and the delegates spent a delightful morning in the city.

A committee consisting of Mr. H. C. Vordtriede, N. D. Cochran, S. W. Bolles and Blacque Wilson went to Napoleon last night and boarded the special as it passed through there about 7:30 this morning. But few of the delegates were out of their berths when the Toledo committee entered the train, but when it was discovered that they were nearing their destination a general rousing took place and soon the delegates were at their breakfast and the escorting committee was welcomed in a hearty manner.

The beautiful souvenirs of the city were then presented and elicited much favorable commendation and the delegates declared that they were the finest souvenirs that they had received on the trip, notwithstanding the fact that they have been entertained and feted in all the large cities of the union.

When the train arrived at Toledo there was on hand a reception committee of prominent citizens to meet the visitors, and they at once entered carriages which were waiting and were driven to the Produce exchange.

Here the general reception committee of ladies and gentlemen received them and there were also present a large number of citizens to meet the party, and an hour was very pleasantly spent.

President Frank I. King, of the Produce Exchange, introduced the Hon. Frank H. Hurd, who made a most eloquent address of welcome. In a delightful manner he informed the visitors that the whole city was at their service and that anything they wanted they might have.

He also called their attention to a few facts regarding Toledo's standing, its growth and prospects, referring to the many advantages that it contained in its school, library, paved streets, fine residences, great manufacturing interests, unexcelled railroad facilities, and marine business.

He told how Toledo people appreciated the honor conferred by this visit and paid a most glowing tribute to the press and the men and women engaged in newspaper work.

The talk was a magnificent one and was well received as the frequent applause testified.

Mr. Wm. V. Alexander, of the Boston Transcript, responded in a brief but eloquent address of thanks, and closed by saying that for true brotherly love and hospitality the east can learn much from the west.

The visitors then entered carriages and were driven about the city, after which they again assembled at the Toledo club, where an elegant luncheon was served, and another pleasant social hour was spent.

At the Toledo club the members and their ladies made the visitors most welcome. They were at once ushered into the spacious dining rooms, where an elaborate dinner was served, to which full justice was done. The floral decorations were magnificent, and Wolff's orchestra furnished excellent music.

After the viands had been disposed of, three cheers were given for Toledo, and there was a call for Marshal P. Wilder. The comical little gentleman mounted a chair, hung his cane in his vest and told several of his best stories, much to the amusement of his auditors.

Willie Wilde, Mrs. Frank Leslie's husband, made a few remarks thanking the Toledo people for their hospitality, and his wife delivered an excellent recitation.

Miss Kate Field told of what a warm spot Toledo occupied in her heart, and the banquet closed with a song by Mr. A. P. Peersall.

Then there was a shaking of hands and bidding good bye, after which the visitors entered their carriages, were driven to the station, and left on their train for Detroit. A few visited the Bee and other newspaper offices.

The visitors spoke most highly of their short stay here, and many were not loth to state that Toledo's entertainment, for a short one, was the best they had received.

The following gentlemen and ladies, comprising the reception committee, were at the Produce Exchange and Toledo club, and did all in their power to make their guests feel at home:

ABOUT THE ORGANIZATION.

The League But an Infant, but a Giant Just the Same.

Persons have asked, "Who are these visitors?" The answer in brief is, "They are the people."

The nature and scope of the International League of Press Clubs is not generally known, this being but the second year of its existence. It was organized but one year ago, and at this its second meeting the details and plan of organization will be perfected and the scope and purposes of the league more fully defined.

The league is composed entirely of press clubs, which naturally includes the newspaper men and women in the most important cities only. One of its aims is the welfare and elevation of metropolitan journalism, and it has also a social and fraternal side.

Probably the following sections of the constitution of the league will best give its motives and scope:

"Its objects are to bring into close and friendly relations the press clubs of the world, and promote a more fraternal and helpful feeling among their members.

"The league shall be composed of press clubs possessing an active membership of not less than 25, each club being entitled to one representative at the annual conventions of the league for each 50 of membership or major fraction thereof.

"Clubs that are members of the league are expected to extend to active members of league clubs of other cities, on their presentation of proper credentials, the full courtesies of the club visited.

"Particular assistance and recognition are asked for members who visit other cities while on duty."

The existence of the league is due to the retiring president, T. J. Keenan, jr., of the Pittsburg Post-Dispatch, and to the Pittsburg Press club. Twenty-three clubs were represented at the first meeting held at Pittsburg during January, 1891. It is confidently expected that the history of the league during 1892 will be one of rapid growth in membership and influence.

TOLEDO AND OHIO

Is Honored by the Election of Several Buckeye Men.

The league is officered by some of the best known newspaper men and women in the country and the membership is made up of many others composed of just as good material.

M. H. de Young, proprietor of the San Francisco Chronicle, is president.

John A. Cockerill, the first vice-president is an Ohio man, well known in Toledo. He was born at Lucust Grove, Adams county, O. He first set type at West Union. During the war he enlisted as a drummer in the Twenty-ninth Ohio regiment, and was slightly wounded at Shiloh, where his father, Colonel Cockerill, greatly distinguished himself. In 1864 he became proprietor of the Hamilton, O., Telegraph, and subsequently bought a half interest in the Dayton Ledger. Five years later found Mr. Cockerill a writer on the Cincinnati Enquirer, of which he became managing editor in 1871, succeeding J. B. McCullah, and remaining in that position for six years. He traveled in Europe for some time, and there added to his reputation by his excellent war correspondence. Returning, he assisted in the establishment of the Washington Post. Later he became manager of the Baltimore Gazette, and in 1883, when Pulitzer purchased the New York World, Colonel Cockerill was his managing editor.

C. H. Taylor, second on the list of vice-presidents of the league, is General Charles H. Taylor of the Boston Globe. He is a man of energy, widely known and respected. When in 1878 he first took hold of the Globe it was a third-rate sheet, but he soon pushed it to the front rank, personally attending to both its editorial and business management. He is a young and handsome man, of culture worthy of the fame of the city in which he wields his pen.

Geo. W. Childs, of the Philadelphia Ledger, is third vice-president. Few men are better known to newspaperdom. He was born at Baltimore, Md., 1829, and entered the navy at the age of 13, spending 15 months in the service. In Philadelphia he became shopboy in a book store. When only 18 years old he had saved enough money to start in business for himself, and three years later became a member of the publishing firm of R. E. Peterson & Co., afterward Childs & Peterson. In 1864 Mr. Childs purchased the paper which has been ever since inseparably associated with his name. He is a public-spirited and philanthropic man, whose broad mind can appreciate merit wherever found, as his many kind acts prove. In Europe he has attracted considerable attention from time to time by his material evidences of admiration for the English poets, Shakespeare, Milton, Herbert and Cowper, erecting monuments and putting up memorials windows in Westminster Abbey in their honor. As an author, his volumes of "Personal Recollections" and "Recollections of General Grant" rank high in the literary world.

Felix Agnus, publisher of the Baltimore American, is the fourth vice-president. Felix Agnus is a well-known journalistic light. He is a native of Lyons, France, and owns up to 53 years of age. Educated in Paris, he commenced to travel in 1852, voyaging to the South Sea islands, the west coast of Africa, Madagascar and other less known countries. In 1859 he was back in France and volunteered in the war against Austria for the redemption of Italy. When the celebrated Flying Corps of Garibaldi was disbanded in 1860 Mr. Agnus went to New York and entered the service of Tiffany & Co., the jewelers. The civil war stirred the military instincts in him, however, and he enlisted as a private. In August, 1865, he resigned the commission of general and became business manager of the Baltimore American, and has ever since devoted his entire energies to it. In 1883 he became sole proprietor of the paper, and has made it a great journal.

P. B. Denster, of Milwaukee, comes fifth on the list of vice presidents. He is a native of Cologne, Germany, but came to the United States when quite a boy, and was an apprentice in the composing room of a Milwaukee paper. To-day he is the proprietor of one of the most valuable German papers in the country, the Milwaukee Seebote. He started the paper 25 years ago, and his popularity and power are shown by the fact that he was elected assemblyman, state senator and congressman in rapid succession. The last mentioned office he has held three times, and now, after filling many minor offices in state and city politics, he devotes his entire energies to his paper. He is a man of wealth and influence, a stalwart democrat, a good speaker, and a thoroughly well informed man on all topics.

Mrs. Sallie Joy White, sixth vice-president, was one of the first women in America to do reportorial work, and to this day is widely known for her capacity to "dig up a story." She is a native of Brattleboro, Vt., and commenced newspaper reporting on the Boston Post, with which paper she was connected for over nine years, then transferring her services to the Boston Advertiser for seven years more. Ever since then she has been a member of the editorial staff of the Boston Herald, with charge of the woman's department, including fashions, cooking and educational matters. Her books, "The Life of Ann Eliza, Wife 19 of Brigham Young," and on the training of the young have been widely read. She was the originator of the New England Women's Press association, and held the office of president of that body for five years.

Charles W. Price, an Ohio man, secretary and treasurer, is the editor and chief owner of the Electrical Review. He was born in Belmont county, Ohio, 35 years ago, and started in life as a printer's devil in the Barnesville (O.) Enterprise. He was for some years the regular correspondent at Topeka, Ks., of the Cincinnati Enquirer and other leading journals.

Toledo has been honored, inasmuch as Mr. P. C. Boyle, of the Commercial, has been placed on the executive committee of the league. At present Mr. Boyle is owner and manager of three papers, to-wit: The Oil City (Pa.) Derrick, the Bradford Era and the Toledo Commercial. He was born in Donegal in 1846, and, being brought over the ocean to Brady's Bend, Pa., by his parents, was educated there. He served during the war, and at its close began newspaper work as a reporter on the Pittsburg Leader. In 1868 he became connected with the New York Tribune and was with that paper ten years. He then started a paper called Labor's Voice at Martinsburg, Pa., and a few months later started the Petrolia Press. In 1881 he founded the Oil Echo at Richburg, N. Y., and between 1885 and 1889 he bought the Oil City Derrick, Bradford Era and the Toledo Commercial.

The other members of the executive committee are: T. J. Keenan, jr., Pittsburg Press; Stephen O'Meara, Boston Journal; Dr. John Frederick, New York Amerikanische Schweizer Zeitung; H. P. Hall, St. Paul News; H. D. Vought, Buffalo Courier; William Berri, Brooklyn Standard-Union, John B. Dampman, Reading (Pa.) Herald; S. G. Lapman, Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald.

THE ROLLING HOTEL.

A Description of the Train That Brought the Delegates to Town.

The members of the happy family of newspaper people who have enjoyed a long and pleasant trip over this broad continent together, rolled into Toledo this morning comfortably "at home" in their palatial hotel on wheels, composed of six Wagner vestibuled cars.

The train consists of one buffet smoking car, one double stateroom car, two twelve section state and smoking room cars with inclosed washroom, etc., one compartment car, all heated by steam and lighted by gas. Each car has hot and cold water, patent closets, etc., the compartment car being the same as is run on the famous limited train from Toledo to New York via the Lake Shore. The interior of the cars is upholstered with silk damask to correspond with the wood, seats, etc., with a frieze of plush of different colors to match the woodwork. The buffet smoker is a model in itself. It is finished in oak and mahogany, has a barber shop, bath room, large easy chairs, etc., with buffet where refreshments of all kinds are served. The dining car is of the most improved style, the old style of section seats having been done away with and chairs substituted, one side of the car having tables seating four persons, while on the opposite side are single tables seating two persons, giving a great deal more room and having a much prettier effect. There are 20 employes, consisting of porters, waiters, cooks, baggageman, barber, stenographer, buffetmen and two conductors. It is without doubt the finest equipped train that has ever crossed the continent. No expense whatever was spared to make it first class in every particular. The Wagner company furnished, without expense to the men, uniform overcoats, which add greatly to their appearance. The train is equipped with 1,000 sheets, 1,000 slips, 2,500 hand towels, 400 barber towels, 500 glass towels, 500 tablecloths, 1,500 napkins, 650 doylies, 500 aprons, 500 jackets, and 200 cooks' caps. It was provisioned at New York with groceries, etc., for the round trip; perishable supplies were purchased enroute, with the exception of meats, poultry, game etc., these supplies having been put on at Chicago and St. Louis. It is one of the finest trains and contained the merriest load of passengers that ever rolled into this city.

The next meeting of the club will be Friday afternoon, February 12. A departure from the usual routine will be taken. LAST NIGHT'S LECTURE.

The Next Course in Toledo's University Extension System.

The high school hall was again crowded to its capacity last evening to hear the third in the series of lectures on economics which Prof. H. C. Adams is giving. The lecturer followed the line of argument which was indicated in the syllabus of the lecture printed in yesterday's Bee. The opinion was generally expressed that the lecture last night was the most interesting in the course so far, and the study hour which followed was also interesting and profitable.

There are three more lectures in the present course, and the next course will begin on Friday evening, February 26. The lecturer in the second course is Prof. Isaac N. Demmore, of Ann Arbor. His subject is the "Masterpieces of English Literature," and he will give the historical and critical interpretations of the writings of great English authors. The third course in the Toledo system will be upon "American History and Constitutional Government," and the fourth and last course for this season an illustrated series of lectures on Geology.

It has been decided to continue the lectures in the high school hall, and those desiring course tickets should hasten to secure them, as the seating capacity is limited.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, causing distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet efficiently. It tones the stomach, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, banishes headache, and refreshes the mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. After eating I would have a faint or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble was aggravated by my business, painting. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, which did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

CLOAKS!
CLOTHING
DRESS GOODS.

Just four months ago we opened our doors to the people of Toledo, to do business in a manner never before attempted in this locality. That is, selling wearing apparel on easy payments. Our success was assured from the start; but, like nine out of every ten merchants beginning in a strange locality, we were led to expect too much, and now in consequence thereof we find ourselves greatly overstocked. We have been troubled some time, thinking what to do with this large surplus. Our experience in other places has taught us to never carry over a dollar's worth of goods from one season to the Next. There is no time like the present. We must sell the goods now, sacrifice profit, sacrifice cost, but sell them we must. With this end in view we will inaugurate the greatest Reduction Sale in Clothing, Cloaks and Dress Goods ever known to the citizens of this city. During this sale we will sell

CHOICE OF ANY GARMENT IN OUR HOUSE FOR $15.00

This includes all our $28, $25, $22.50 and $20 Garments.

FOR $12 We will sell Choice of any $18.00, $16.50, $15.00 Garment in the Store. All our $13.50 and $12.00 Garments go during this Sale FOR $10

Not alone do we make this great reduction in prices, but during this sale we will give special terms of credit to all responsible parties. If you are in need of a suit or overcoat, or your wife needs a dress or a cloak, and you have any regard for the contents of your pocketbook, you cannot fail to take advantage of this sale.

John Schulz, Plaintiff,
vs.
George Foerch and others, Defendants.
In court of common pleas of Lucas county, Ohio.

George Foerch, whose place of residence is unknown, and Rosina Shulz, residing in the town of Grab, District Backnaug, in the Kingdom of Wurtemberg in Germany, and Frederick George Schulz, who resides in the town of Wohlhauem, Canton Luzern, in Switzerland, will take notice that on the 29th day of January, 1892, John Schulz filed his petition in the court of common pleas in and for Lucas county, Ohio, against them and Lizzie Beese, Chas. Beese and Henry Spielbusch, as executor, averring and charging therein that Catharine Foerch died at Toledo, Ohio, on January 11th, 1892, and that on the 16th day of January, 1892, a certain paper, dated August 5th, 1889, pretending to be the last will of said Catharine Foerch, deceased, was admitted to probate in the probate court of Lucas county, as her last will; that Henry Spielbusch was qualified as executor of said pretended will, but that said paper writing was not the last will of said deceased, and plaintiff prays that an issue be made up as to whether said paper is the last will of Catharine Foerch, deceased; that the same be set aside and for other relief. Said parties are required to answer on or before the third Saturday after 5th of March, A. D., 1892.

CURRENT TOPICS.

Seemingly impassive figures often serve as the keys of grim tragedies. One thousand five hundred and forty-four infants were suffocated in England during the year 1890. The proportion of such deaths was twice as high on Saturday night as on any other night in the week. The next highest proportion was on Monday night, and then there was a gradual decline. The explanaton of these differences is the daily and varying amount of parental intoxication. Saturday is pay day, and the gin palaces are in full operation. In some places Monday is a workman's holiday, and the wages of Saturday have not been fully consumed. But when the money is gone and the parents work, the infants sleep in greater security.

Chicago is to have another new hotel. It is to be located on the southwest corner of Sixty-second street and Madison avenue. The ground fronts 183 feet on Sixty-second street and 90 feet on Madison avenue, and has been leased for 99 years at $1,650 a year. It will be a handsome structure, the first and second stories being of cut Bedford stone, and the upper stories of buff Roman pressed brick, relieved with cut stone trimmings. The two upper stories will have a Mansard roof, with high gables, flanked by dormer windows. On the corner there will be a circular bay window of brick and stone, extending from the top of the first story to the roof. The interior will be cut into 300 rooms, and, as it will be conducted as a European hotel, there will be no dining room, but to the right of the office there will be a large cafe, 40x70 feet in size. The rooms will be finished in hard wood and heated by steam.

Persian hatred of Europeans, just now creating some stir in Teheran, is always latent in that fanatical community. A New Yorker who spent a winter in Teheran says that this feeling was displayed by natives on the slightest provocation. He meets ill looks and threatening forces on every turn, and found that when he handled fruit in the market no native would buy it, and the merchant had to make at least a pretence of destroying it. Whatever a Christian touches is polluted. The same thing is met with in British India, where even servants are known to destroy cups and glasses from which Christians have drank. Anglo-Saxon race prejudice is as nothing compared with the oriental loathing for the Christian European.

The figures of France's national debt, presented by Camille Dreyfus, are truly magnificent. It was begun by Francis I. primarily to establish the artillery. The debt which produced the revolution was, in dollars, $36,800,000. Napoleon I. increased it immensely, and $260,000,000 was exacted by the allies in 1815. The restoration borrowed $200,000,000 to give the emigres, many of whom got back the property taken in the revolution. Other loans added $40,000,000. Louis Philippe borrowed $88,200,000 and the second republic $10,5000,000 to pay his debts. Louis Napoleon was the greatest borrower of all. In the first month after becoming emperor he borrowed $60,000,000 and soon after $300,000,000 for the Crimean war. The war in Italy cost $100,000,000 and the war in Mexico $63,000,000. Preparations made after the Prussians' startling victory at Sadowa cost $90,000,000. Eugenie borrowed $150,000,000 after the battle of Woerth. The direct cost of the war of 1870 is estimated at $2,000,000,000, though M. Dreyfus thinks it was less—the indirect cost having been far greater. The present republic in 1881 borrowed $200,000,000, redeemable in 60 years, and in its 20 years of existence has made debts for $600,000,000.

Belgium is the first country to make hypnotizing an offense against the law of the land. The law recently approved by the parliament in Brussels is as follows:

"1. Whoever exhibits an individual hypnotized by him or by another shall be punished by imprisonment for from two weeks to six months and by a fine of $5 to $200.

"2. Any person, not a physician, having hypnotized an individual under 21 years, or one not in full possession of his mental powers, shall be punished by a fine of $5 to $200, even when the hypnotized individual has not been exhibited publicly.

"3. With imprisonment shall be punished, moreover, every person, who, with the intention of cheating or otherwise injuring, causes a hypnotized individual to sign a paper containing a contract, disposition, obligation, release, or declaration of intention. The same punishment shall be inflicted, also, upon the person deriving benefit from such a paper."

The strike of 1,800 Urbaine cab drivers in Paris—a strike that has been going on since January 1—is not without cause. The Urbaine company requires each driver to turn in each night 23 francs 75 cents for the hire of the cab. Now, when it is taken into consideration that by the payment of 1 franc 50 cents, a passenger has the legal right to be driven at a stretch from one end of the city to the other (so long as he keeps within the fortifications), a distance that eats much time, the amount demanded by the company seems exorbitant. To be sure, the passenger almost invariably gives a few sous pourboire, but generosity is a variable quantity, while the price demanded of the company is fixed. On the other hand, the company claims that the first cost of a cab and horse is 17 francs a day. The drivers offer 15. Meanwhile—and this seems strange to us Americans with our system of city government—the Paris municipal council has voted a sum of 10,000 francs for the strikers.

NOT AT ALL WELL.

Some of the words and music of Messrs. Gilbert and Cellier's The Mountebanks, produced at the Lyric theater, had to be struck out before the first performance lest the opera should prove too long. One of the songs thus sacrificed is a capital ditty, in Mr. Gilbert's most characteristic style:

When your clothes from your hat to your socks
Have tickled and scrubbed you all day;
When your brain is a musical box
With a barrel that turns the wrong way;
When you find you're too big for your coat
And a great deal too small for your vest,
With a pint of warm oil for your throat,
And a pound of tin tacks in your chest;
When you've got a bee-hive in your head,
And a sewing-machine in your ear,
And you feel that you've eaten your bed,
And you've got a bad headache down here;
When your lips are like underdone paste,
And you're highly gamboge in the gill,
And your mouth has a coppery taste,
As if you'd just bitten a pill;
And wherever you tread,
From a yawning abyss
You recoil with a yell,
You are better in bed,
For, depend upon this,
You are not at all well.

NOT SO EASILY SETTLED.

The Bakers' Trouble is Not All Over Yet.

Two of the Bosses Repudiate the Agreement—The Central Labor Union Called to Hold a Special Session.

It was thought last evening, when the agreement between the Bakers' Protective association and Baker's union No. 66 had been signed by representatives of both organizations, that the bakers' strike was over, and that the victory was with the men.

To a degree this is true, but everything is not as satisfactory and serene as was anticipated and hoped. Two of the bosses have not taken back the union men.

Mr. Brenzinger, who was not present at the joint meeting of the committees yesterday afternoon, refused to discharge his present force or to take back his old men. Mr. Brenzinger has three of the men who went back on the union at work, and also the Chicago man.

The second firm with whom there is trouble is Seyfang & Co. Mr. Seyfang was present at the meeting yesterday, but left before its conclusion, promising to abide by the decision of the rest. He has the fourth man who deserted the union in his employ, and did not anticipate the demand that the man should be discharged.

The discharge of the men who had worked while the others were out was, however, made a part of the agreement, and when Mr. Seyfang learned this he refused to abide by it. On this the union men formerly in his employ refused to go to work, and so that shop was run shorthanded again last night. The firm usually employs seven men, and had two last night.

In all the bakeries except Brenzinger's and Seyfang's the union men worked as usual last night. There was a rumor on the streets this morning that Tait had refused to employ two of his old men. This is true, but the lay-off of the two men was not on account of trouble with the union, but because there was no work for them. The men in Tait's shop last night were union men.

Special Meeting of Central Labor Union.

President Booth has issued a call for a special meeting of the Central Labor union for to-morrow afternoon at Carpenters' hall at 3 o'clock. The report of the C. L. U. committee on the strike will be received and acted on. Whatever course may be adopted, the Bakers' union will be sustained.

It rests on this committee now to furnish proof within 30 days that the Vienna brand of yeast is boycotted. This they think they will have no difficulty in showing. When the proof is given, the employing bakers, with perhaps one or two exceptions, will be willing to forego the use of that brand.

This will settle the trouble in which the strike originated, but, as is usual in all such troubles, bad blood has been shown on both sides, and troubles arising from the strike itself will remain to be adjusted.

A BOLD ROBBERY.

A Thief Enters the House of Albert Haughton.

Mrs. Haughton Severely Cut and the Residence Ransacked and Robbed of $60.

The house of Albert Haughton, living on Central avenue, in Sylvania township, was entered by a burglar about 6 o'clock last night. Mrs. Haughton was alone in the house, her husband and five men being at work in the barn only a few yards distant.

When Mrs. Haughton entered the kitchen she saw a man entering the back door, who asked her the time of day.

She turned to look at the clock and he struck her a blow on the neck and arm with some sharp instrument that severely cut her and felled her to the floor.

It was some time before Mr. Haughton returned from the barn and found his wife in a dazed condition, and only able to tell him there was a man in the house who had cut her.

A search revealed the fact that the man had departed, but not until after he had gone through the house and taken $60 from the bureau drawers.

Sylvania township is greatly excited over the affair, this being the second robbery in a short space of time.

Always use SOZODONT and rub it in well. It gives such pleasant relief from parched tongue resulting from sleep, promotes the healthy secretions of the mouth. It will cost more for meat and such things but don't begrudge it.

WILLIAM F. JOHNSTON.

Death of One of Toledo's Most Popular Young Men.

Death has again invaded the ranks of Toledo's popular young men and claimed a much respected and widely known citizen.

At 8:30 o'clock this morning William F. Johnston gave up his life after a battle with consumption, which he could not win.

Mr. Johnston was the oldest member of the Toledo Cadets in point of service with the exception of Captain McMakin, and was a highly respected and efficient member.

He was first sergeant at the competitive drills in Washington and Chicago and took part in all the important movements of the company.

At the time of his death he was secretary of the Smith Bridge company, having advanced to that position from messenger boy.

The funeral will take place at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon at the residence, 2005 Putnam street.

The Cadets and Veteran Cadets will turn out.

IN THE HOUSE TO-DAY.

Tributes to the Memory of the Late L. C. Houk.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The chaplain in his prayer alluded to the recent death of Hon. Leonidas C. Houk, and referred to his long and valuable services as a member of the house.

Mr. Oates offered a resolution which was passed by the house authorizing the committee on judiciary to investigate the charges preferred against Hon. Alexander Boorman, judge of the district court for the western district of Louisiana, who was charged with high crimes and misdemeanors, alleged to have been committed by him. Several members attempted to get recognition for the introduction of bills, which led to considerable confusion.

Public business was suspended at 1 o'clock, and tributes of respect were then paid to the memory of Hon. L. C. Houk.

THE MEMPHIS CASE.

Alice Not Altogether Indifferent to Men.

An Express Messenger Found Whom She Warmly Favored—Grand Jury Investigation.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 30.—The fact that the grand jury would begin its investigation of the Mitchell-Ward murder, and the possibility that the fair prisoners might be arraigned, caused an immense crowd of all ages, conditions and shades of color, male and female, to gather at the court house, showing that public interest, so far from subsiding, is keener than ever.

The curious were disappointed, as the prisoners remained at the county jail. The grand jury began its investigation, and heard the testimony of Miss Jo Ward, the married sister, Mrs. Vlokmar, Sarah Hulsey and Clara Miller, the colored girls who overheard the threats made by Alice Mitchell on Sunday night, and some of the letters that passed between the parties were also submitted. From the grand jury room the two colored girls were taken to the jail, where they identified Miss Mitchell.

It transpired, too, that a week before the killing Alice went down to the steamer Ora Lee in search of Freda, who was expected to return home that day. She concluded to stay another week, and doubtless that conclusion prolonged her life one week.

It also developed to-day that when Mrs. Volkmar wrote the letter to Mrs. Mitchell which produced the estrangement between her sister and Alice Mitchell, the latter wrote Mrs. Volkmar threatening to kill her for coming between her and the girl she loved.

The correspondence spoken of is very jealously guarded by the authorities, and will probably not be made public until the trial. Just enough has been learned, though, of its nature to justify the opinion that it will be very spicy. One letter from Alice to Freda covers the idea that the writer might have been happy with one of the opposite sex had she not met and loved Freda. "You know very well," she wrote, "that but for you I would have been —— by this time." Your correspondent was not permitted to see the name.

James Draper, a messenger employed by the Southern Express company, who runs from Memphis to Grenada, was on excellent terms with Alice, and when his train came in she was frequently about the depot with her buggy. She was very partial to him, and when laid up by illness she constantly sent flowers to his room. She frequently spoke to him of her other sweetheart at Gold Dust, but until the tragedy he had no idea that his rival was a woman.

The grand jury could have indicted Alice to-day, but it will fully investigate the connection of Lillie Johnson with the case as an accessory before returning a true bill against either.

MORTGAGED FOR A MILLION.

Boston, Jan. 30.—A mortgage for $1,000,000 made by the United States Book company, a New Jersey corporation, to the Manhattan Trust company of New York, which covers property in publishing houses in New York, Boston, Cambridge and Chicago, included in what is known as the "book trust," was recorded to-day at the City Hall.

FREIGHT WRECK.

Bethlehem, Pa., Jan. 30.—Freight train No. 416 on the North Penn railroad was wrecked at Penllin, early this morning. Both tracks were blocked for five hours. Several trainmen were slightly injured. It is supposed the train struck a large rock which had been loosened by the mild weather and rolled on the track.

AND STILL ANOTHER.

Mr. A. G. Wright, recently with Irving B. Hiett & Co., and Mr. C. E. Russell, of Irving & Russell, have just formed a copartnership and opened an office on St. Clair street, Boody house block, for the transaction of a general real estate and insurance business. They are both experienced men in their line, and will no doubt have a successful career. Their advertisement appears on another page in to-day's paper.

A NEW FIRM.

Attracted by the comparative low values of real estate in this city, two more of Detroit's enterprising young men, Messrs. Russell & Throop, have opened an office at 309 Summit street, where they will do a general real estate business. These young men are energetic, practical fellows, and will be a welcome addition to our business circles. Their card appears elsewhere in this impression of the Bee.

Mrs. R. Wertheim, 524 Adams street, has disposed of her entire stock of millinery and fancy notions to M. Dreyfus, of Memphis, Tenn. Mr. Dreyfus will sell what goods he has now on hand at about 50 cents on the dollar, or for one-half its former value. In about a week he will remodel the store and supply it with one of the finest lines of stylish hats, millinery and fancy notions in the city. Store corner Adams and Huron.

The Aeolian, that marvelous musical instrument, is being sought after by our best citizens. The Whitney & Currier Co., 219 Summit street, have sold them to some of our best musicians. You should go and listen to them.

THE KETCHAM FARM.

The Bee is in receipt from the owner, of a fine picture of Baronstein, the famous King of the Ketcham farm stables. Mr. George H. Ketcham is acquiring a line of horses, for the track and for breeding purposes, that can not be excelled in this country. An elegant catalogue of 75 pages gives the names and pedigree of this famous stock.

POOR MAN'S CHAMPAIGNE.

Beer Takes a Sudden Rise in Paris.

Paris, Jan. 30.—There is much sorrow and depression among the beer drinkers of this city, and the government is condemned on all sides for this state of affairs.

Beer has gone up with a jump, sudden and high enough to thoroughly alarm consumers of the "poor man's champagne" and it is all on account of the February 1 prices of glasses would be increased five centimes a glass, a real calamity to those whose pockets are of the extremely lightweight.

In consequence there is much grumbling and muttering of vengeance against the government who are openly condemned in the strongest terms for what is classed as a conspiracy to deprive the poor man of his beer.

CHEATING
IN HORSE
BLANKETS
Nearly every pattern of 5/A Horse Blanket is imitated in color and style. In most cases the imitation looks just as good as the genuine, but it hasn't the warp threads, and so lacks strength, and while it sells for only a little less than the genuine it isn't worth one-half as much. The fact that 5/A Horse Blankets are copied is strong evidence that they are THE STANDARD, and every buyer should see that the 5/A trade mark is sewed on the inside of the Blanket.

Now Uncle Samuel says Chile must salute the American flag. Salute or shoot.

The Wheeling Register inquires, "did Mr. Harrison have in hand that apology before he sent his message to congress?" If so that hat is a misfit forevermore.

It is fortunate that this Chilean trouble has ended peacefully. A war would have produced another crop of copperheads.—Boston Journal.

Evidently it didn't end soon enough to blight a crop of doughheads.

The reaction from the extravagance of the billion-dollar congress may leave some necessary appropriations stranded on a rocky bottom. For instance, the deep channel project.

Whether or not Grover Cleveland withdraws from the presidential race, he is the foremost democrat of his generation. History has a fine page reserved for Grover.

Spurgeon is worse again and this time it is feared he must go. It is a year in the near springtime since the struggle between a naturally vigorous constitution and obstinate disease began. Last June they gathered to see him die. But he exhibited wonderful pluck and rallied from his feeble condition. Now he has gout of hand and head and all his other ills are clamoring for recognition.

Canadians talk back to Mother England when they think the neighbors are not listening. The Montreal Journal of Commerce says:

> It is tiresome to hear English papers monotonously telling us what trade policy to adopt, as if we Canadians were simpletons, and only English editors understood our needs and interests. We don't need preaching at and telling week in and week out that it is important for us "to preserve friendly relations with America." It is also important to keep our feet warm in winter, but we can do both without being spoon fed with advice.

England's solicitude lest the United States shall get into a fuss with her is quite touching.

Under a headline "facts versus theories," a high-tax organ prints the following:

> The nation had been subjected to a low and non-protective tariff since 1846, the dire effects and tendencies of which culminated in the historic panic of 1857, whose widespread and withering influence prostrated the business of the country, deprived the working people of their indispensible wages, and thrust thousands of honest and industrious citizens into the streets, without an occupation, to engage in an unseemly scramble around the doors of the free soup houses of the metropolis. The pitiable picture of a land, of inexhaustible resources and uncounted natural wealth, laid waste and robbed of its strength and prestige, presented the legitimate and inevitable consequences of an experimental experience of only fourteen years under a free trade regime.

The headline should have been "Lies versus historic truths." When was the land "laid waste?" Because soup-hunters thronged about the "metropolis" signifies not that the country had lost "prestige." Crazy New York is not the country. When had we a "free-trade regime?" When had we a tariff that "protected" labor in the least degree? An ignoramus or a falsifier is as necessary in some printing houses as an office cat.

A REVIEWER REVIEWED.

In the Fortnightly Review, Mr. Grant Allen, considering "the scope of modern English Literature," says "the French author addresses, in his own tongue, at best, some seventy million human souls; an English author addresses a roughly estimated audience of one hundred and ten million souls, at least. He speaks to the greatest theater the world has ever known." "And yet," complains the reviewer, "fewer English authors are known outside the English speaking people, than Scandinavians or Russians." The Tolstois and the Ibsens are read everywhere. English books are read only by English speaking people. He says "English literature, roughly speaking, is all produced in England. There is an American literature, it is true, but it is mostly modeled on English forms." Mark Twain, Bret Harte and Walt Whitman are the three exceptions noted. It is sneeringly said "McKinley has failed to protect occidental culture."

The reason he gives, why English authors are thus neglected outside their own domain, is because of the dullness of the middle class in England. (Be it understood, he has disposed of "New York, Chicago, Montreal and Melbourne," as representing their several countries, in a word—they are all feeble echoes of the noises heard at headquarters in London). He says England has genius, but it is isolated and the common run "are as dull as ditchwater." In brief, what England lacks is a body of readers and critics. This is rather a strange argument when the comparison made is with the fame of French authors. Is he willing to admit that France has a larger "appreciative and critical body of the general public" than England? Perhaps the dullness of English literature, as a rule, has to do with the apathy of readers and reviewers. We need not quarrel with his conclusions as regards his own people, but we must enter decided protest against the summary manner in which he attempts to rope Americans into his area of readers (and writers) who are as "dull as ditchwater." We might remind him that a novel by Marion Crawford commands as ready an audience in England as it does in America. It is the cosmopolitan taste of the great reading world of America that helps to give French and Russian books their fame abroad. If English readers are dull because dull literature is offered them, Mr. Allen need not rail at outsiders for preferring a writer who "has something to say" (his own expression), and the gift to say it in a fetching manner.

Mr. Allen might size up the magazine situation of the two countries. He need not go out of his own land to do this, for the American magazine is on the reading table of every English man and woman of letters, and to be had at every news stand. Hunt London through for anything corresponding to Harper's, the Century, Scribner's, the Cosmopolitan, the Atlantic, St. Nicholas and a score of others. Perhaps Mr. Allen doesn't call this literature; perhaps not, but there is both prose and verse in every issue, equal in strength and beauty to a deal of that which they have gotten bound in books and put away as classic and unapproachable.

When it comes to the newspaper world, all there is to say has been said. Even the Canadians, who approximate more nearly to our rapid and ready wit and ways, even they fill the lighter and brighter columns of their journals with extracts from our papers, almost without exception and every day in the week, and this particular feature is mentioned because "dullness" is the chief complaint made against the English literati.

Most certainly Americans will write in their native tongue (improved in many particulars), and we have Sir Edwin Arnold's testimony for the parenthesis, but the language is common property, and the English reviewers will please keep hands off our Longfellows, Lowells, Poes, Hawthornes, Holmes, Whittiers, Beecher-Stowes, Ward-Howes, Emersons, Alcotts, Bancrofts, and scores of others. They are not in any sense their literary possessions. America has distinctive literary achievements, and the variety of them is something of which to make boast. The puritanical strain, which old-Englanders want to appropriate, is ours and indigenous to its soil and country, just as surely as the mining-camp and wild west, and the southern dialect and rich experience stories are. We are rich in material and rich in workers and refuse utterly to be worked into the English mass of dullness that Mr. Grant Allen deplores, and probably not without reason.

Lord Tennyson is no respecter of persons. When he denies the curiosity hunter of America a glimpse of his august self, and admits an English Sir, who is his peer in poetry if not in rank, his disposition remains the same. So kindly and tenderly Sir Edwin Arnold wrote of him in a recent magazine paper, one thought how flattered the Lord must feel at being thus sketched. Not at all. The lord is scolding because Mr. Arnold betrayed his confidence and gave to the world what was meant for himself alone. He is especially displeased at the gossip about his personal appearance, his daily habits and his home. Ah, well; Sir Edwin is an old newspaper man and he knows how to take it. The "divinity" that doth hedge a lord is getting badly weather-beaten.

An appropriation of $75,000 more for the extermination of the gypsy moth is on its way through the customary channels. Good thing we didn't go gunning for the Chileans while we have this moth on our hands. If some of those French bacilli hunters would turn their attention to this family, they might strike a million-dollar job.

With characteristic modesty, Col. Shepard prints his own "greeting" to the press club crowd in his paper (copied from the San Francisco Examiner) but has space for only this one of the scores which were sent (in answer to the Examiner's imitation.) It takes millions behind one to sustain such sublime egotism.

Boston has begun fussing about "watering the streets." Toledo would be glad just now for some plan for drying (and cleaning) her thoroughfares. She must be patient and wait till an election looms in the distance. The old man with his hoe is somewhere in hiding.

Our war with Chile ended too soon for the poet's use. The Bee has several contributed war poems which are now no good. The writers thereof will blame the Chilean government and Mr. Blaine and not our "reader."

"No more Chile sauce just now thank you," says Uncle Sam, as he wipes his knife on his napkin.

THE PARK QUESTION.

Toledoans Invited to Send Their Views to the Commissioners.

The board of park commissioners held their regular meeting at the office of Commissioner Potter yesterday afternoon. Some matters of routine business were disposed of, and the following was adopted, which will afford Toledoans interested in the subject of parks an opportunity to give the commissioners the benefit of their notions on this important matter, which bodes so much for the city's future welfare:

Whereas, It is the desire of the board of park commissioners to gain all the information possible before entering upon the complete discharge of their duties, and recognizing the interest our citizens have on the question of parks for the city of Toledo, be it

Resolved, That an invitation be and is hereby extended to all who wish to express their views on the subject to present the same, either as to a full system of parks and parkways, or any part thereof, together with such maps or outlines, which will indicate their ideas, and that such communications be submitted in writing and mailed to the secretary within sixty days from February 1, 1892.

WILLIAM BEATTY,
Secretary Board of Park Commissioners.

THE WICKED KIRMESS.

Kingston, N. Y., is in the throes of a church-versus-society dispute. The wicked kirmess has appeared in their midst, the proceeds of which are to go towards a hospital fund. The pastors of the churches gave their public endorsement before they fully understood what a kirmess was. Now that practice is in progress, some of them desire to revoke their sanction. The friction got to be so pronounced a compromise meeting was held and it was supposed hostilities had gone the way of the Chilean war, but Sunday last one minister broke the compact and in his evening service declared that the kermiss was infinitely lower down in the scale of amusements than the Sunday bull fight of the Spaniards. The low-necked dresses worn by the ladies, he said, were detrimental to health and the shortness of the skirts induced to immorality. He explained in horror stricken accents that, "the ladies who would take part would stand on an elevated platform, and therefore their small skirts would leave their ankles exposed."

Of course the exposition of a woman's ankles is not to be tolerated in a religious community. The old supposition that woman had no joints or muscles, but by some mysterious dispensation of Providence, rolled around on castors, ignoring entirely vulgar legs and feet, still possesses this reverend mind. A woman's ankles exposed before congregated Kingston! How shockingly immoral. What a delicate compliment to the gentlemen of Kingston, who, it is insinuated, would all rush for fronts seats! In the meantime the young ankles which have hitherto performed their mission in this particular church, threaten to turn about and make themselves at home in another sanctuary and denomination. The latest phase of the conflict is a reverend orator from abroad to depict in fitting terms the dangers of the kirmess, and a renewed hustling on the part of the wicked women with ankles to get in all the necessary pratice for a first-class show. It's a sad case and the devil may come out ahead as usual—whichever side he is on.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Oscar Wilde is now posing as an olive green socialist.

Boston has now a licensed female undertaker, Mrs. Julia Brown.

Mme. Schliemann is continuing the excavations at Troy begun by her late husband.

Neal Dow is still living in a house he built in Portland, Me., nearly 65 years ago. He is now 87 years old.

The Duc d'Orleans is to be sent on a long journey through Asia Minor with instructions to study up the country and the people.

Richard Henry Stoddard's handwriting is so minute that he can compress the equivalent of half a column of newspaper type into a single page of manuscript.

Miller Uri has completed the portrait of Cardinal Gibbons which he has been painting for the Catholic university in Washington.

Dr. James McCosh is now engaged in completing his literary works. He has written nearly 25 volumes and pamphlets, all of which have had a wide circulation.

Robert Louis Stevenson, now in the South Seas with greatly improved health, has just completed a new novel, called "On the Beach at Kalsea."

Miss Florence Nightingale is ill with the grip in London. Her recovery is very doubtful, as she is now 72 years old. She has been an invalid for a long time.

John Brown's monument is a huge bowlder, placed by nature at the head of the spot selected for his grave, and upon which the name of the hero of Osswatomie is carved.

One that has read J. Lafcadio Hearn's first letters from Japan, which are soon to appear, says he is living up to his old newspaper training, and that he reflects the delightful dreaminess of that land in a masterly way.

James E. Cooper, the old circus man who died in Philadelphia a few days ago, left a fortune of $2,000,000 earned in the business. It was Mr. Cooper who, in 1865, engaged Dan Rice, the famous clown, at a salary of $1,000 a week and all expenses, that being the largest salary ever paid to any single performer.

MARGINAL NOTES.

T. W. Higginson writes of "the intrinsic impressiveness of print." He says, however irresponsible we may know a newspaper item to be, about ourself or our friend, when we see a like item about another, our first impulse is to accept it as truth; if a society report presents a person at a reception, we place him there at once in our mind's eye, though we may have positive reason to believe he is in Seattle or Venezuela. These are observations for writers as well as readers to consider.

A recent writer in the National Observer makes a queer plea for inconstancy. One can scarcely conclude whether he is satirical or in earnest. He says:

> Constancy has ever received an improper meed of praise at the hands of the moralists. It is at best a dull virtue. It makes no call upon the intellect nor upon the soul. It is, in the main, a blind, mute instinct, as mechanical and uninspiring as the tenacious grip of a lobster, or the unreasoning attachment of a limpet. Constancy is the cheap possession of the mediocre, the inherited habit of the dull and docile. A protracted devotion to a single object is a reckless extravagance of time and soul; and there is no more dismal fate than thus to fall into an infatuated absorption and become heedless of other infinite joys. Inconstancy is a connoisseur; constancy an ignoramus.

This daring philosopher must needs define some of his terms more explicitly. A constancy which is simply habit formed from duty may be the narrow, tiresome thing he depicts, but a constancy that is spontaneous, overflowing, untrameled yet unforgetting, is quite a different thing. The wide world may be its own, but with but one harbor for the soul. Inconstancy of purpose accomplishes but little; inconstancy of thought presses towards no goal.

A noble heart in time resigns itself
To great calamities with fortitude;
And yet it cuts one to the soul to part
At once with all life's little outward trappings!

—Schiller's Mary Stuart.

In Amelie Rives Chanler's new play, Athelwold, is her most ambitious literary effort. It is Shakespearian to a degree. But for study of the great bard it had never been written, yet the imitation is not servile, and the poetry is strong and full of rich metaphor. Athelwold, Thane of King Edgar of Angleland and lover of Elfreda, daughter of Earl Olgar, soliloquizes thus:

Is this to be alive? Is this to love?
Would I were dead with hating life and love!
How came this on me? on me—Athelwold—
Who have but used love's name to tickle mirth
Or lay a wager? O thou monstrous glutton,
That feed'st on honor, pride, truth, fealty, all
Of God in man! Shall men still call thee love
Mocking that God whose name thou hast usurped?
What is to love? Is 't to outline all peace,
And know thyself a coward to the core?
Oh, then, Hate's gentle; Hate is honest; Hate
Hath been untimely born and missed his name.

Athelwold the Thane, jealous of King Edgar's gallantry to his wife Elfreda, struggles with the king in mortal combat and is stabbed to death by him. Elfreda laments over the dead body, avowing her love and bemoaning his fate.

To compare this work of a young, untrained American woman with the later attempts of England's laureate would cause critics to catch their breath, but one is tempted to do this and declare in favor of the American woman.

The Objector Is a Patriot.

In every interview reported from Representative Holman that "watch dog of the treasury" has firmly declared that President Harrison's administration "will receive the unqualified support of the democratic side of the house in any measure necessary to uphold the honor of the government." Put that to the credit of the great objector. He has behaved like a man and a patriot in the Chilean crisis. —Rochester Herald (Mugwump).

What the Country Expects.

The country looks to the government to be firm and unyielding as to the essential reparation that is due this nation for the outrage at Valparaiso, but it does not desire President Harrison to take an ultrapunctilious position as to the precise form of the atonement. Nor would the nation's support be given to any war that was evidently forced upon a narrow and technical point of dispute.—Boston Globe.

Where Does Whitney Come In?

There is one department of the national government to which the country can point with special pride—the navy. Mr. Tracy has shown himself to be a great, able and farseeing naval minister. The rapidity with which a first-class fleet has been put in fighting condition is a great national and international object lesson.—New York Recorder.

A Run on the Dictionary.

This cruel war with Chile could be borne a good deal better if it did not afford the newspapers, country and city, such an everlasting chance to lug in their few Latin words that apply just now and which nobody knows the meaning of except the man who has just looked in the back part of the dictionary.—Bradford Era.

What the Times Hopes.

A dead seal is worth considerably more than a live poacher, and a live seal is more valuable yet. Whatever happens in the way of the enunciation of principles of international law, everybody will hope that the Canadians get a black eye.—Philadelphia Times.

All for the Flag.

The response of the southern members of the house to President Harrison's message wherever it is published proves the south jealous of the national honor and of the security of our citizens abroad, as there has been every reason to believe the south would be at the first demand.—Philadelphia Record.

Making War Ridiculous.

Edison's electric squirt-gun is a welcome addition to the guarantees of peace. It is a ridiculous instrument and all the better for being so. When a soldier's death ceases to be poetical war will not be so popular with soldiers.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Times Have Changed.

Judge Woods is now on his knees before democratic senators begging them to vote for his confirmation. This is not the attitude the judge has been wont to hold in the presence of democrats.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Gov. Boies Is Level Headed.

Gov. Boies, of Iowa, says that "we legislate too much." We believe that Gov. Boies' head is level, on this point, at least. More than half of the laws on the statute books are worse than useless.—Marquette Times.

Which Serves Them Right.

The worst about a monopoly tariff is that it not only tries to pull the wool over the public's eyes, but also makes them pay for the wool.—Boston Globe.

One or T'other.

The Empire state should appropriate $1,000,000 for its display at the fair or stay away altogether.—Chicago Press.

Still Worrying About Hill.

It looks as if Mr. David Bennett Hill intended to play all his trumps on the first lead.—Washington Post.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY.

Tiffin, O., Jan. 30.—The fiftieth anniversary of Tiffin lodge, No. 77, was celebrated last night by the Masons of Tiffin and neighboring towns, together with a brilliant assemblage of the elite of this city.

Fully 400 guests were entertained in what is probably the finest arpointed lodge room in the state. The exercises were historical and musical, and the event closed with an elaborate banquet.

Among the five oldest members who gave reminiscences was Jefferson Freeze, the oldest affiliated Mason in Seneca county, he having joined the order in 1833.

MENTIONED ON THE STREETS.

That the political pot is beginning to sizzle.

That the bakers' strike was short and sweet.

That the straight channel committee will be home on Monday.

That the streets were never in such filthy condition as at present.

That evening parties will begin again now that sleighing has ceased.

That it is a poor day when a new bond issue is not considered in Toledo.

That Williams county wants to be with Lucas in the new congressional district.

That Alderman Everett has had a sufficiency with one term, and he will retire.

That Gen. Kountz would not take the nomination for secretary of state on a silver platter.

That Clarence Armstrong is as proud as they make them, all on account of that new badge.

That the press delegates expressed themselves as thoroughly delighted with their stay in Toledo.

That Salvini ought to prove the success he is with two newspaper men doing his advance hustling.

That Doc Smith is waiting for Mayor Emmick's return before letting go another broadside.

That several new booms will be exploded at the coming banquet of the Republican league at Columbus.

That Senator McConica is against judicial redistricting because the republicans cannot gobble all the districts.

That candidates for offices will find it to their interest to have Representative Flickinger's John Hancock on their papers.

That the band will play lively at the O. Y. C. on Monday evening, as there will be reports, resignations and other music galore.

That Ottawa and Erie counties will be associated in the new judicial district, and Huron and Sandusky counties will be yoked together.

That Superintendent Tupper of the asylum wields a trenchent pen when he goes about it. His compliments to Chairman Taylor were rather biting.

That there will be an elegant scrimmage for the justice's offices in the republican city convention, as there are several candidates, and reports are not all in.

A TEMPERANCE WORKER.

Miss Cora B. Taylor's Engagements in Toledo.

A DELIGHTFUL ENTERTAINMENT

Given by the Members of Joan of Arc Assembly—Meetings To-morrow.

The members of Joan of Arc assembly gave a hop last night in their new quarters at Clarke's hall. There were about 80 couples present and Lang's orchestra furnished excellent music. This is the first of a series of parties which will be given by the assembly during the winter. The social and financial success of last evening's party will encourage the members to work with renewed energy to make equally pleasant their future entertainments. The committees which did such efficient work last night were:

Reception—Misses Clara Speckhardt, Mary Meyers; floor—Misses Josie Skehan, Alida Coombs, Margaret Kruse; arrangements—Mrs. Nora Mack, Miss Bee Daily, Miss Katharine Calkins.

To-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock there will be a meeting in Clark's hall of representatives of the Central Labor union and men of the cooper trade. At 3 o'clock a meeting of the boiler makers of the city. All men in these two trades are urged to attend the meetings.

DIED FROM HER OWN CUP.

Kingstown, Ont., Jan. 30.—Mrs. Blackwell, of Wolftown, Renfew county, died Thursday night from the effects of poison. She was charged by her husband and daughter with having put poison in the tea, the taste of which they detected before drinking. She denied the accusation and to refute it drank a cupful of the tea. She was taken violently sick and died before a doctor could be summoned.

A LAMP OVERTURNED.

Salem, Mass., Jan. 30.—John K. Kenny's house, on Carleton street, was partly burned last night. Joseph Clark, a boarder, in whose room the fire started from the upsetting of a lamp was so badly injured by inhaling flames that his life is despaired of.

An aged invalid woman who was removed to a neighboring house may die from the injuries she received during the fire.

ONLY TEMPORARY.

Paris, Jan. 30.—Senor Diezcaminada, the Spanish consul, in an interview to-day said that he believed that the rupture of the Franco-Spanish commercial treaty negotiations was only of a temporary nature, that Spain desired a settlement of the affair and that she was willing to agree to mutual concessions.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION.

Eganville, Ont., Jan. 30.—Another dynamite explosion took place yesterday at the Netherland phosphate company's mines here. Three men named Prudhomme, Sauve and Marten were killed and a number of others severely injured.

HE DREW THE LINE.

The Hod Carrier Had No Use for a Woman Doctor.

One of the hod-carriers at work on a brick building out in the suburbs climbed up to the first story Thursday. Then he fell, and the hod, the bricks and the ladder fell on him. When the debris had been pulled away the hod-carrier was lying face downward on the pavement stone senseless. There wasn't a drug store or a doctor within half a mile. A bricklayer put on his coat and tore for the nearest patrol box. Meantime the hod-carrier was lying there in a mess of blood, apparently thinking about nothing in particular.

The boss was fuming about, kicking blocks of wood into the street, and swearing at the laziness of the police. The big plasterers, who could drive a spike with their fists, were standing around as helpless as children. At this time a young woman in a blue coat came across the street. She was pretty and rosy, with a lot of yellow hair drawn up tightly from her temples, and she had a most decided look in her bright blue eyes. She brushed the big fellows aside and asked briskly: "What's the trouble here, men?"

"One of the boys has busted himself wide open," said the boss, politely.

"Let me see," said the pretty girl, dropping on her knees beside the hod-carrier. She took off a dainty kid glove, and with her little white hand felt the man's skull.

"No bones fractured here," she said, looking up at the group around her.

Then she noticed the pool of blood lying beside the man's right arm, and whipping out a pair of scissors she ripped up the coat sleeve and the sleeve of the flannel shirt.

"Goodness!" she said. "An artery has been cut. Give me a piece of twine quick."

The boss pulled a piece of coarse string from his coat pocket and handed it to the girl. She drew it around the man's arm, made a loop knot, thrust a pencil into the loop and twisted it until the cord sank deep into the flesh.

"You hold this," she said to the boss, and the big man knelt down and grabbed the ligature. Then she had some water brough out. She washed the scalp wound in a jiffy. Then she cut among the loose flesh with scissors and with plaster and a strip of linen from the same preposterous bag she made a neat bandage. Then she arose and viewed a pretty job of emergency surgery with reasonable complacency. The patrol wagon and the hod-carrier came around at the same time. As the wagon backed up the hod-carrier opened his eyes and saw the girl in the blue cloak.

"Are you hurt, Mike?" said the boss.

"Naw," said the hod-carrier. "Take me somewhere that I can get a doctor. I don't want no dom women monkeyin's 'round me!"

The girl doctor in blue looked at him quizzingly and laughed as she washed his gore from her hands in the bucket of water.—Chicago Herald.

A LIGHT STEP

Anybody can have it who will be at the pains to set the foot down right. In that lies all the difference betwixt a thumping, lumping gait and the light tread that makes people call you "velvet footed." It is something ridiculously easy to learn, and one which adds even more to the comfort of the learner than to that of those about him.

The whole art and mystery lies in a single sentence: Put the ball of the foot down first, throwing the weight upon it, and letting the heel come to the floor the hundredth part of a second later. Treading flat footed—over all the sole at once—the weight comes with a jar that is about equally destructive to quiet, to grace and to shoe leather. By stepping first on the ball, just back of the toes, its cushiony muscles act as a spring, and make of walking a double pleasure.

Try it, boys and girls, for just one month, and see if it does not help you in many ways—not to mention the benefit to the older people about you.—New York Ledger.

THE LUCKY MAN.

During the last administration, says the Boston Globe, Col. Christy called at the white house one day with Mr. Heffner, an aged gentleman of venerable appearance, who had passed many years of his life on the South American continent.

"President Cleveland," said the colonel, "I have brought this gentleman, who has spent most of his long life amid the magnificences of the little republics of South America, that he might look upon the simplicity of the great republic of our northern continent."

"Yes," replied the president, affably, grasping the stranger's hand, "we are very simple here."

"You have encouragement from on high, Mr. President," rejoined Col. Christy. "You remember that speaking through the mouth of His inspired Psalmist He has said: 'The Lord preserveth the simple,' and I'll be blest if He hasn't taken good care of you."

"This world is full of coincidences," said Col. Christy, when reminded of the incident yesterday. "I had occasion to remind Mr. Cleveland of the Lord's oversight the other day when I congratulated him on the birth of a daughter and called to his mind the expressive Spanish proverb: 'The lucky man has a daughter for his first-born.'"

A STRANGE CAREER.

Christian Long, who began life as a clock-peddler, has died at Shippensburg, Pa., after a notable career as evangelist, legislator, lobbyist and millionaire. One of Mr. Long's most successful schemes to found a fortune was to visit a farmer's house, spend the evening, make himself agreeable by playing on the fiddle, of which he was a master, and finally trade a clock for a certificate of Cumberland Valley railroad stock. The company was verging on bankruptcy for a time and Mr. Long bought many shares outright for 25 cents apiece. The consequence was that when he got ready to quit peddling clocks Mr. Long controlled enough Cumberland Valley stock to enable him to dictate the election of directors and their officers. But he didn't enjoy his money as the way of the world goes. He lived in a dilapidated house and ate bread and molasses most of his life.

GROWING SNOBBISHNESS.

For plain, republican people we are getting very snobbish. We break out into all sorts of aristocratic societies, and parade titles and insignia with all the zest of denizens of the effete monarchies. The latest of the brood is the Colonial Dames of Maryland, composed of ladies who are descended from some ancestor who came to this country prior to 1774, and who rendered efficient service to the country during the colonial period. This would take in all the convicts who were sold into Virginia and the Carolinas during colonial days, and who, doubtless, rendered efficient service.—Indianapolis News.

JAPAN'S UNIVERSITY GRADUATES.

Japan appears to be turning out her university graduates at a faster rate than employment can be found for them. A Japanese contemporary states that many of this year's Imperial university graduates have as yet been unable to find employment, and says this state of things is gradually assuming a serious aspect. It would appear that the advancement made by the country in learning has not been accompanied by corresponding strides in commerce or the remunerative professions, and until this is remedied Japan must expect to find the present discouraging state of affairs assailing her young graduates in starting out in their struggle for existence.

YOUTH AND AGE.

When Time was young, and the faint golden spears
Of dawn-light stirred the curtain of the deep,
So true our hears—our wills—the mighty sweep
Of unseen wings had borne us o'er our fears.

But shadows lie upon the folded years—
Dim shadows of a twilight that must creep
And creep, until forgetfulness and sleep
Round in our world, kissing its doubts and tears
Into a dream; and gathering the old,
Old memories as a reaper, who among
The fair young hillocks of the harvest gold,
Would leave the withered blossoms that are sprung
From the rich soil of youth, and must unfold
The fragrance of their hope while Time is young.

—C. A. Dawson.

THE STATION DESPAIR.

We must trust the conductor, most surely;
Why millions of millions before
Have made this same journey securely
And come to that ultimate shore.
And we, we will reach it in season;
And ah, what a welcome is there!
Reflect, then, how out of reason
To stop at the station Despair.

Ay, midnights and many a potion
Of trouble and sorrow have we,
As we journey from ocean to ocean,
From sea unto ultimate sea.
To that deep sea of seas, and all silence
Of passion, concern and of care,
The vast sea of Eden-set islands
Don't stop at the station Despair!

Go forward, whatever may follow,
Go forward, friend, led or alone;
Ah, me, to leap off in some hollow
Or fen in the night and unknown.
Leap off like a thief; try to hide you
From angels, all waiting there!
Go forward, whatever betide you,
Don't stop at the station Despair!

Only those too young to know what happiness is are never unhappy.

It is no uncommon thing for a girl to be up half the night getting ready to go to bed.

An angel couldn't be as good as a man in love declares he will be when he is married.

How peacefully the dead sleep! And no wonder; all that vexed them must take care of itself.

Every time there is rejoicing over a great victory there is mourning over a great defeat.

There is probably nothing in the world that represents as many buried hopes as a baby's grave.

Every man believes that his neighbor's children inherit their meanness and that his own acquire it.

A man's goodness to his wife depends entirely on her ability to make him enjoy being good to her.

When a man makes up his mind to be good he also makes up his mind that it will be the fault of others if he fails at it.

Do a man a favor and he will love you for a week; at the end of that time he will hate you because you do not do him another.

We are all ostriches, and spend half our lives in burying our heads in the sand and the other half in laughing at others who do it.

The only unselfish love in the world is that existing between persons of the same sex. It is the same with the only enduring hatred.

Every man in the world is telling what he would do if he were a woman and every woman tells of things she would do if she were a man.

Women never get credit for the secret they keep for the reason that men won't believe they have a secret unless they tell it to prove it.

No woman ever gained anything by trying to fight a man. If she holds a club over him she can't use it without striking herself at the same time.

By the subjection of ordinary air to the pressure of 75 atmospheres, or 1,225 pounds, with a condenser kept at minus 139 degrees centigrade, air has been reduced to a liquid form, and the liquid when allowed to evaporate, produces, it is said, a temperature of minus 200 degrees centigrade. This is within 73 degrees of absolute zero.

A WISH.

For the youth he mourned with an endless pity
Who were cast like snow on the streets of the city.
He was weak, maybe; but he lost no friend;
Who loved him once, loved on to the end.
He mourned all selfish and shrewd endeavor,
But he never injured a weak one—never.
When censure was passed he was kindly dumb;
He was never so wise but a fault would come;
He was never so old that he failed to enjoy
The games and the dreams he had loved when a boy.
He erred, and was sorry, but never drew
A trusting heart from the pure and true.
When friends look back from the years to be,
God grant they may say such things of me!

—John Boyle O'Reilly.

THE CAUSE REVEALED.

DISCOVERY OF A SUBTLE AND LIFE-DESTROYING ACID.

The Way by Which It Gets Into the System—Some New Scientific Facts of Great Value and Interest.

(Boston Advertiser.)

Any one who can go through the trying winters and springs of this climate without suffering from rheumatism or neuralgic pains of some kind is decidedly fortunate. What it is that causes these pains has been a greater mystery to physicians and scientists than almost any other question. Some have declared that they are the results of a severe cold, others that imprudent exposure has caused them, and still others that they arise from blood poisoning.

In order to obtain, if possible, a correct theory of rheumatism and all the aches and pains which accompany it, certain authorities in Washington have taken steps to obtain the views of the physicians of America upon this subject. These views are of a varied nature, but so overwhelming a proportion hold to one belief as to leave but little doubt that it is the correct one. This belief, briefly stated, is that uric acid in the blood causes rheumatism, and that it is only by removing this poisonous acid that rheumatic or neuralgic troubles, in all their terrible forms, can be cured. This being true, the important question arises: "How does the uric acid get into the blood, and how can it best be removed?"

Uric acid finds its way into the blood because the kidneys are weakened and cannot throw it from the system. Restore the kidneys and you will restore the power that will force the uric acid from the system, and thus banish the rheumatic agonies which it causes.

This is reason; it is science; it is true. No one whose kidneys are in a perfect condition was ever troubled with rheumatism, and no rheumatic sufferer, however slight the pain may be, has perfect kidneys. The conclusion of this truth is inevitable. Perfect kidneys mean freedom from rheumatism.

There never was, and, probably, never will be, but one remedy that can, in every case, drive uric acid from the blood. That remedy is Warner's Safe Cure. It cures rheumatism by driving the deadly uric acid from the blood. It banishes pain by removing the cause. It acts directly upon the kidneys. Within an hour from the time it is taken its influence will be felt. It sustains the organs that sustain life, the forces that make the blood. For ladies during the severe ordeals through which they are called to pass it is invaluable. For the nervous troubles of youth and the debility that precedes old age it has no rival. There are thousands of men and women, too, who are in perfect health to-day wholly by reason of its great power, and it is the most popular remedy the world has ever known.

THE OLD-TIME WAIL.

(A Press dispatch describes the utterance of a Farmers' Alliance meeting in Kansas as consisting of "the old-time wail of distress.")

Still Dives hath no peace. Broken his slumber.
His feasts are troubled and his pleasures fail—
For still he hears from voices without number
The old-time wail.

They gather yet in field, and town, and city,
The people, discontented, bitter, pale;
And murmur of oppression, pain and pity,
The same old wail.

And weary Dives jaded in his pleasures,
Finding the endless clamor tiresome—stale,
Would gladly give a part of his wide treasures
To quiet that old wail.

Old? Yes, as old as Egypt. Sounding lowly
From naked millions in the desert, hid
Starving and bleeding while they builded slowly
The Pharaoh's pyramid.

As old as Rome. That endless empire's minions
Raised ever and again the same dull cry,
And even Cæsar's eagle bent his pinions
While it disturbed the sky.

As old as the dark ages. The lean peasant,
Numerous, patient, still as time went by
Made his lord's pastimes something less than pleasant,
With that unceasing cry.

It grew in volume down the crowding ages—
Unheeded still, and unappeased, it swelled,
And now it pleads in pain, and now it rages—
The answer still withheld.

A century ago it shrieked and clamored
Till trembling emperors and kings grew pale;
At gates of palaces it roared and hammered,
The same old wail.

It got no final answer, though its passion
Altered the face of Europe, monarchs slew;
But ere it sank to silence, in some fashion,
Others were wailing, too!

And now in broad America we hear it
From crowded street, from boundless hill and vale,
Hear, Dives! Have ye not some cause to fear it?
This old-time wail?

Louder my brothers! Let us wail no longer,
Like those past sufferers whose hearts did break;
We are a wiser race, a braver, stronger,
Let us not ask, but take.

So Dives shall have no distress soever,
No sound of anguished voice by land or sea;
The old-time wail shall be stilled forever
And Dives shall not be!

—Charlotte Perkins Stetson.

Some painters in Geneva are painting a panorama of the Bernese Alps, which will have a height of 51 feet and a width of 345 feet, to go to Chicago. The whole will cost $300,000. It was all sketched from the summit of the Mannlichen, 6,600 feet high.

A STORM NEXT WEEK.

It Will Strike the Rockies To-Morrow.

Warm Weather After the Middle of the Month.

Tree Planting and Weather—Interesting Letter From Professor W. T. Foster, of Missouri.

Copyrighted, 1892, by W. T. Foster.

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 30.—My last letter gave forecasts of the storm wave ue to cross the continent from February 1 to 5, and the next will be due to reach the Pacific coast about the 5th, cross the western mountains by the close of the 6th, and the great central valleys from 7th to 9th, and the eastern states about the 10th.

This storm will be of about even force during its five days' journey across the continent. The coldest part of the cold wave will follow about two days behind the storm center, and it will probably be coldest in the western mountains about the 8th, in the great central valleys about the 10th, and in the eastern states about the 12th.

No sudden warm wave may be expected that will long continue in February, but after the 15th the weather will gradually grow warmer till about the 16th of March, when it will be unusually warmer. After that the temperature will not greatly increase until after the 10th of April.

No general thaw will occur north of 38 during February.

Trees and the Weather.

The time for tree-planting is not far away, and this is an appropriate time for discussing the effects of trees on climate. This question is of greatest interest to agriculture—using that term in its broadest sense, to include everything that grows from the soil and is cultivated by man—and in their gatherings this should be one of the foremost questions for discussion among the cultivators of the soil.

But other industries are greatly interested in preventing our climate from retrogadin and falling into that blight which is seen in the great Sahara and the Gobi, specimens of the heritage that awaits the great Mississippi valley if we continue to follow the course we are now pursuing.

If we can imagine what this country would be without agriculture, we can thereby estimate the relative value of agriculture as compared with the other industries. Take away any one of the other industries and this country would continue to prosper, but rob it of agriculture and what would remain? If we should lose every other industry, leaving only agriculture, we would still retain millions of prosperous inhabitants, for it is possible for farmers to live entirely independent of every other industry.

In time agriculture will be destroyed in the United States as it was destroyed in Spain 500 or 600 years ago, and by the very same means which are now diligently at work in this country, and which already begins to tell with fearful effects in the frequent recurrence of drouths where formerly they were almost unknown. Such a catastrophe would destroy every industry.

Feeling the great importance of this question and discerning the inevitable destruction of agriculture that is approaching with sure and steady step, I must, on the approach of tree planting time, continue to discuss the importance of nature's groves, so long as I am engaged in discussing the weather.

The tendencies of cultivating the soil are in the direction of destroying the climate by decreasing the rainfall, and no instance can be cited when this has not been the result. The Kansas State university has been teaching the reverse of this. Land speculators were largely interested in disposing of land on the western plains, and hence the theory promulgated from the state university that because of the cultivation of the soil in Kansas and Nebraska, the rain belt was moving westward at the average rate of 10 miles a year. This was a most pernicious fallacy, for it induced thousands of men with their families to invest the whole of their small means in lands on the western plains. Many of these were old soldiers of the union army, who, having failed in business, took claims on those barren uplands of the western plains, believing the statements of that great institution of learning, that cultivation of the soil on those bleak praries, or rather deserts, would insure sufficient rainfall to mature good crops. I know of thousands of good people, of quite limited means, who were misled and ruined by that false theory that cultivation will increase rainfall, and the Kansas State university deserves to be reprimanded by public sentiment for permitting one of its leading professors to propagate such a theory.

Since this theory was first given out, the uplands of the western plains have been twice depopulated by great drouths and hot winds and this condition of affairs must continue in the future unless remedied by rational means.

The rain belts do progress westward on the western plains, periodically, and have done so since before white man set foot upon the hardy buffalo grass, but these rain belts, with equal periodicity, have receded eastward, leaving vegetation to perish in the excessive heat. These ebbs and flows in the depth of the atmosphere that overlies the plains are caused by external influences and they will return as long as the moon revolves around the earth and the planets around the sun.

But there has been an improvement in the climates of Kansas and Nebraska in their eastern portions. Why that improvement? Not because of cultivation, for that will decrease the rainfall in any country, but because the prairie fires have been kept out and trees have been permitted to grow. Millions of trees have been cultivated in the eastern parts of Kansas and Nebraska and now there are millions of trees there, large and small, where there were only hundreds 30 years ago, and these trees have improved the climates of the countries mentioned as they have done in all countries and in all ages past. The same means will improve the upland plains that lie in the panhandle of Texas, in eastern Colorado and Wyoming, in the Dakotas, in the Indian territory and in western Kansas and Nebraska.

Every part of the country that lies between the Rocky mountains and the Alleghanies is, or should be, greatly interested in destroying the aridity of the country mentioned above, and restoring it to its ancient fertility, for the aridity of that country is the cause of nine-tenths of the drouths that damage the states lying in the great central valleys. If the country known as the western plains was restored to its ancient and natural amount of rainfall, there would not be half the destructiveness in the drouths of the other mid-continent states.

To effect this will require tree planting and irrigation on a large scale; so large that it can never be easily accomplished, except at the expense and under the general management of the national government.

The congress expressed its belief in the theory I am advocating when it enacted the timber claim laws. By these any person could obtain a title to government land by cultivating a certain portion of it in trees. This was intended, principally, for the western plains, but it is a failure because the tree culture has been neglected, as it always has been and always will be when left to private enterprise.

There must be irrigation to some extent, especially on the higher lands of the plains, before trees will live through these periodicl drouths, and as two-thirds of the future population of the nation will be greatly interested in the country that is damaged by the drouth originating on these arid plains, the nation should give aid both to irrigation and to tree planting in the arid districts.

This letter is devoted to the discussion of drouths in the great central valley, but it will open the way for a like discussion of drouths in the eastern Atlantic and western Pacific states.

In Weekly Council—Discussions Pleasant

THE COMFORTLESS PAIR.

She sat in her cosy chamber,
With the curtains all drawn tight,
Curled up in a great big rocker,
Fair and sweet in the soft lamp light.
A bon-bon box on the table,
With the choicest sweets was filled,
Which she daintily nibbled while writing
The words that her lover thrilled:
"Oh, I long for you now, my darling!
Without you my life seems drear,
There is never a bit of comfort
For me unless you are near!"

And her lover read the letter,
As he sat in his bachelor's den,
With his feet cocked up on the mantel,
In the usual way of men,
With a box of cigars at his elbow,
And a pipe and a glass near by,
And the smoke clouds wreathed above him
As he echoed her lonely cry:
"Oh, I long for you now, my darling!
Without you my life seems drear,
There is never a bit of comfort
For me unless you are near!"

THE STONE WOMAN

Of Eastern Point.

At the turn of the gray and the green,
Where the new road runs to the right
(For the summer people's ease),
And on the scarlet Light;

Where the tottering barn observes,
And the old farm road looks down
The harbor, and out to sea,
And back to the fishing-town;

Shapen of stone and of chance,
Carven of wind and of time—
Stands the Woman of Eastern Point,
Haunting my heart and my rhyme;

Stunted of stature and thin—
Coast women alive look so—
Wrapped in her blanket shawl,
Wind-blown and cold, peering low

Past the shivering edge of the barn,
Searching the bay and the sea
For the sail that is overdue,
And the hour that never shall be.

Did she stand like that in flesh,
Vigilant early and late?
For the sake of a scanty love
Bearing the blasts of fate;

Acquainted with hunger and pain;
Patient, as women are;
Work, when he is at home;
Pray, when he's over the bar;

Loving and longing and true;
Gilding her idol of clay;
Bride, when the boat comes in;
Widow, it sails away.

Waiting and watching and gray;
Growing old, poor, and alone;—
Was it worth living for? Say,
Tell us, thou woman of stone!

Still she stands, face in her shawl.
If it hide smiles, do they mock?
If the tears fall, are they sweet?
Ask. But you ask of the rock.

Dust unto dust taketh wing;
Granite to granite is grown;
Seeking the sail overdue
Turneth the heart to stone.

Wind-blown and grief-worn and brave,
Gazing the sad sea o'er;
Dumb in her life and her death—
Spirit of Gloucester shore!

Women's Clubs and Cares.

You remember a man's criticism, recently, on woman's clubs. It was a bit sarcastic (on men) and a bit truthful, for women. It was said that women do not imbibe the true club idea. They have the notion that they must engage in some work of philanthrophy or charity as the aim and end of the organization. Men simply purpose to rest, smoke, eat, drink and enjoy themselves, when they join a club.

Men go to one extreme and women to the other. Women are gradually taking the moral burdens of the world upon their shoulders. Already the church work is hers. The family man bows down before one Moloch, and only one—"Business." He is forgiven all remissions in home and social life because his "business" absorbs all his time and his energies. He makes of himself a machine, and runs well until some part of the gearing that cannot be repaired, wears out through constant friction and lets go. And this "pace that kills" is considered commendable and necessary to keep up with the procession.

* * *

But about the busy women in clubs, whose mission is to reform the world. These are usually they who have their own living to earn or whose hands are full of cares for home and children. The others are as burdened with society demands, albeit they are called the leisure class.

A new club has just been organized in Boston to promote, so far as its influence may be able, the industrial economic and social advancement of humanity. It is named the Wendell Phillips club, in honor of the great New England philanthropist. At a recent meeting a petition to the legislature was agreed to, asking for "the appointment of a board of special commissioners to inquire into the condition of the laborers of the commonwealth, who shall take testimony and report their proceedings, with such recommendations as they deem necessary," the same to report in 1893. It would seem, would it not, that men and voters should introduce such measures? And so they have, but the work seems never to be done satisfactorily. The time for ridiculing women who do these things is long since gone by, but there is place for the question, what of woman, herself? We are told she is growing stronger and more vigorous through more varied interests in thought and life. It is monotony that kills.

One sometimes wonders why civilization imposes so many burdens on men and women. The more culture, luxury and refinement we possess, the more bowed down with anxieties and responsibilities we become. What's the matter with the world anyway? Is't any wonder the most popular recreation is to go gipsying and get rid of it all, for a moment or two? If we could only enjoy our modern appliances for comfort-giving in moderation, but we ride everything to death and knock the breath out of our own bodies in doing it. Who can furnish the program for a change, the prescription for relief? If there were not so many poor and improvident and ignorant and criminal persons to provide for; if we did not go on multiplying causes faster than we can doctor results—if and if and if—

It is a long time since we have had any fashion gossip in our work room. While our members are not "fashionable" women in the common acceptance of the term, yet we must keep our eyes open because, in spite of all croaking to the contrary, changes for the better are taking place, and out of the conglomeration spring ideas worthy consideration and adoption. We have learned to put the necessary warmth for the body in the undergarment that fits the form, rather than attempt to hang it about us in skirts, depending from the hips and swaying in the breeze. One light-weight skirt and a one-piece gown secured by fastenings into one garment, is the coming dress. Indeed it is already here. Evening princess gowns are shown in the latest fashion magazines. To be sure they are too close to step in, comfortably, and have yards of cloth snarled around the feet, but a modification of this is possible as is shown by a "street gown" built on the same plan—shorter and fuller in the skirt part. That is the greatest trouble to overcome—a dress short enough to be out of the soil of the pavement is not becoming, judged by our present standards. It needs a deal of education to reconcile us to that change. And the woman who cares for convenience and not at all for appearances has not yet evoluted out of the necessities of her new spheres of industry. But we are gowned more becomingly and more wisely than we were a few years ago. Never again in the history of womankind will the enormous bustle and the snarls of "drapery" be welcomed back. It has been tried again and again to resurrect the expanding crinoline, but it cannot be done. We have yet stuffed birds and animals' heads on hats and bonnets, and exaggerated flounce necks, abnormal sleeves and other monstrosities, but only the extremists indulge in these fantasies. It is possible for a woman with broad shoes, plain and simple gown to be stylish as well as comfortable. We see them on our streets every day in the week.

Various Topics.

Though late in answering the call, yet here am I, who have been listening to the sister's ideas, gaining knowledge on the themes, "Economy of Time," "Neatness and Order in the Household," "Advancement in Mental Growth," "Combination in Societies to Promote Culture and Temporal Prosperity."

There are so many things I want it is difficult to make a selection. Something I have desired has been accomplished, that of a young man acknowledging his Creator before all men, willing to work as well as pray, and if success should crown his efforts to praise the "Giver of Gifts" for the opportunity, and the gift which enables him to win success. I hear people saying daily, I dislike boys; they are rude and full of mischief. No comfort in boys. This idea is prevalent with many persons, but it is a mistaken one to turn boys out of doors to their own devices for recreation. If the same care and time were spent upon boys as are devoted to girls, there would be found a manly tenderness for children and animals, reverence for holy things, and politeness toward individuals.

Some men argue thus: Business engrosses my time and thoughts. I have no leisure to play with my children, much less to be an instructor; let women attend to the religion. Suppose the father is willing the mother should have charge of the moral and spiritual growth of the child's mind. Time the revealer will prove the mistake of his life. The mystic tie (to the unbeliever is an enigma) which unites those hearts which have aided each other in the acceptance of the Redeemer's grace.

The majority of Christian fathers say grace sitting at the table, but a beautiful German custom has been adopted by some Americans, that of the family all standing about the table while the eldest person asks the blessing.

Several years ago I accidentally heard a conversation not intended for my ears—a middle-aged person was telling another of the object of his journey. He had been to visit the grave of a person who providentially had been an instrument for his salvation. He had known him well in life, but had just been able to fulfill his desire to visit his grave.

No household is complete without boys and girls. I always enjoy a mixed society of young and old. We have uncles and aunts here, but we mourn the grandpa and grandma of this household. I would like to see articles from a mother and a father.

Some of the flowers in the Household bouquet have ceased to bloom, but the Fernleaf and Moss are as bright as ever. The Primrose and the Rose emit fragrance. Where are the Myrtle, Hyacinth and Marguerite? LISBET.

Woman's Wants and Needs.

What a woman wants most? Why a woman wants so many things and whatever she wants at all she wants most. Different as all women are from one another there are a few needs common to all.

She is not a selfish creature so she wants something to work for. She has a fund of love and she wants something to spend it on and she needs wisdom that she may spend it wisely, for the actual good of herself and friends. She needs a knowledge of her duties she is so inclined to feel that the responsibility of everything rests on her that she impresses the same idea on everyone else and she becomes an unselfish though not the less domineering tyrant. With everybody's duties to attend to no wonder she lacks time for the things she most craves.

She needs an individuality of her own that shall make her not the household drudge, but the most interesting member of the family.

She wants to get out of the ruts, to see and understand and master her circumstances. To realize that her work is not the same as anyone elses's but her own individually; that she has time for all of the joys that are along her path and that "more enjoyable fruits grow along the wayside of duty than in all the wilderness of inclination."

She needs simpler tastes that will recognize the small seemingly unimportant joys that come with every day duties. It requires a degree of greatness to enjoy simple pleasures; the most truly educated, cultivated need the fewest artificial amusements to relieve the monotony of existence.

To obtain these things might make necessary a change in the nature of many and that is perhaps what some do really most need, at least change enough to let a little more joy into their lives. "Business before pleasure," is very good as a maxim but it is a very poor business that has in it no pleasure. PRAC.

Sure Enough.

Editor Household: I am pleased to see another effort being made by the women of Ohio to secure the elective franchise, and that petitions to the Ohio legislature, with that object in view, are being circulated for signatures, and hope that they may be numerously signed. Why should the sterner sex be so fearful of entrusting their sacred right (?) of voting to the weaker sex, when they are often so anxious to entrust them with all the property, to keep the creditors away as far as possible? Are they afraid the wife couldn't protect the ballot box as well as the cash box; the bond box; the rent list box; the real estate box, etecteria ad infinitum? Or do they do these latter because: "With all my wordly goods I the endow," is a part of the marriage contract; and deny the ballot because that is an inheritance (?) not accounted in worldly goods, and is indivisible?

The Scrap Basket.

Can the crushed grape foresee the wine,
Or grain between the millstones tell
All it will be, a food divine,
A daily bread? And we, ah, well!
May we not be like them at least,
A portion of the Master's feast?

Two Kentucky girls have lately graduated from the Cleveland Technical School. They completed the course of engineering and carpenter work, and became experts in the use of carpenter's tools and in the manipulation of steam machinery. They have been offered work upon the woman's building at the World's fair. This is a new departure, but the carpenter's bench offers easier work than the washtub.

Through a chance fissure of the churchyard wall
A sweet-breathed vine thrusts out a vagrant spray,
At whose slim end a snow-white blossom droops
Full to the dewy redness of a rose
That reaches up on tiptoe for the kiss.
Not them the wren disturbs, nor the blue bee
That buzzes homeward with his load of sweets;
And thus they linger, flowery lip to lip,
Heedless of all, in rapturous mute embrace.
Some necromancy here! These two, I think,
Were once unhappy lovers on the earth.

—T. B. Aldrich.

There is to-day, I believe, more deep, pure, and far-reaching love in the heart of humanity, a truer conception of justice, a higher standard of spirituality than civilization has ever known.

How seldom you see a man who is the best friend to the best friend he has.

The man who has money is troubled a good deal by advice from men who haven't any.

A sufferer from the widespread dress-reform movement makes the following wail:

"Bifucation" is vexation,
"Suspenders" are as bad;
"Trunks to the knee" discomfort me,
And "Bloomers" drive me mad!

Pumpkin Custard.—To one large cupful of stewed pumpkin that has been cooked without scorching and drained until dry, add one pint of milk, four beaten eggs, one cup of sugar, half a teaspoonful each of mace and cinnamon, a little salt, one teaspoonful of ginger, and a tablespoonful of melted butter. Bake in shells of paste.

The window roll is a cold weather invention that has a use. It is made of cheese cloth and is the length of the sill and is very narrow. It is filled with sand and serves to "stop a crack to keep the wind away." The bag must not be filled too solidly, as it does not so well adjust itself as when loosely packed.

There is no fireplace so grand,
So richly tiled, so wide and splendid,
That it can spare the glowing brand,
In which its warmth and cheer are blended.
There is no life so proud and stern,
So far removed from human weakness,
But holds some nook where Love must burn,
To save it from a chilling bleakness.

In Canada all the principal universities of the dominion are open to women.

The man who borrows trouble always has to pay big interest.

The world demands more of a Christian than the Bible requires.

At the recent conference in Saratoga, Rev. Dr. ——, of Boston, who is opposed to suffrage for women, and takes a rather conservative view of the woman question in general, spoke disparagingly of women as public speakers. Dr. —— was not very well heard; and just as he was dwelling on the imperfections of women as speakers, and the importance of their taking elocution lessons before attempting to make public addresses, a lady in the back part of the audience rose and said, in a voice that was distinctly audible over the large building, "Will the gentleman please speak a little louder? We cannot hear a word he says." It was Mrs. Mary A. Livermore.

For when that little song
Goes ringing in my head, I know that he,
My luckless-lone forefather, dust so long,
Re-lives his life in me!

Marriage seen from its best side—and I have seen it in all its beauty of 50 years' duration, growing purer, sweeter, stronger, holier as the years go by—marriage is a painfully practical thing, and nothing is more conducive to its permanence and happiness than a masterful ability to live up to its requirements. But this ability must not be all on one side; it is an equal partnership.

An Evening's Diversion.

At a party, in Toledo, this week, a pleasing charade feature was introduced. It was a small dancing party and this light, intellectual entertainment enlivened the intervals of exercise and furnished enjoyment for those who did not indulge in the pleasure of stepping to music. It was a game of poets and authors, after this fashion: large cards were handed round with tiny pencils attached, on which were written ten charades each, the answers to which would form the name of poet or author. They run something like this—

What a rough man said to his son when he wished him to eat properly.
A covering for the head.
A name that means such fiery things I can't describe its pains and stings.
Not one of the four points of compass but inclining inclining to one of them.
An American manufacturing town.
Hump-backed but not deformed.
A disagreeable fellow to have on one's foot.
A manufactured metal.
A game and a male of the human species.
An answer to which is the greater poet, William Shakspeare or Martin Tupper.
What the meat in the pot might say if it could answer the query "What are you doing?"
A slang expression.
Put an edible grain between a bee and an ant.
A shade of morn, a shade of night, nor black nor blue nor red nor white, yet formed when two of these unite.

(Householders are invited to solve and send answers.)

The list can be extended at pleasure. In the hands of a lively company the quiet fun of it is very enjoyable. A prize may be offered for the card which returns the most correct answers, and penalties determined for the worst exhibition.

About Lace.

The best Brussels lace is made of wonderfully fine thread, the flax for which is grown in Brabant and steeped at Courtrai, the Lys water being very clear. This thread is spun in cellars, since contact with dry air causes it to break. A ray of light is shown on it, but the spinner is guided chiefly by touch, and stops her wheel when she feels the slightest unevenness. The number of these expert spinners is small, and the work very tedious and unhealthy. Real Brussels thread is very expensive, costing from 20,000 to 30,000 francs per pound. A piece of Brussels lace passes through seven different hands, each worker having her own department, and really knowing nothing of the intended effect when all together, which is decided upon by the head of the establishment.

Lace-making is taught in many of the schools of the old country. In Belgium alone there are over 900. Perhaps Honiton is the most valuable of all English laces; no doubt the preference which the queen gave to it at the time of her marriage brought it into even greater prominence, as over a dress of rich white satin, trimmed with orange blossoms, she wore a veil of heavy Honiton in order to conceal her face from the public gaze. It is now passing into disuse, except along the Devonshire sea shore, where there are some workers yet. Guipure de Bruges, sometimes called "Duchesse," resembles Honiton. The term "Guipure," now used for any rich lace, was in old times applied to a kind made of thin strips of vellum, round which gold, silver, or silk thread was twisted, worked either with a needle or on a pillow, outlined and filled in with stitches, and very perishable.

Mechlin resembling "Valenciennes" somewhat, was considered one of the "prettiest laces," though only used for trimming white articles. Later there was a pillow-lace, less expensive than Valenciennes, and a coarse pillow-lace, used chiefly by the peasant women for their costume head dresses, in Holland, Sweden and Denmark. More delicate kinds were made, but not so extensively.

Blonde lace, black and white, is also worked on a pillow. Chantilly, a black lace, is made at Bayeaux principally, though a good deal is made in Spain.

Irish lace comprises crochet Guipure, Limerick. The Limerick is most suitable for veils and flounces, Greek and Italian peasants work aloe fibres into a lace which is exceedingly pretty, but will not bear the washing. Another natural lace is often furnished from the West India tree "Lagetta lintearia," with white flowers and smooth leaves. Its inner bark can be so separated in water as to resemble net.

The first machine-lace was made at Notingham, England, in 1760, upon the ordinary stocking-frame, a looped fabric, woven with a single thread, and much resembling open knitting-work.

Rare and beautiful as these works of art made in different lands have been and are, we believe we shall yet see America with its lace-makers and fine-art needlewomen, if we may venture a prophecy by the progress in other industries.—Mrs. G. Hall, in Domestic Monthly.

Hints from Authorities.

Round waists are associated with all kinds of skirts.

The sleeve puffed at shoulder and elbow (one puff), with smooth cuff from elbow to waist is a prevailing fashion.

Black is used with almost every color. Black-and-white costumes will be a feature of the late winter and early spring toilets.

Everything is being trimmed with ribbon, and the ribbons that are most popular have either a moire or gauze effect.

Blue is, for the first time in some years, a leading color. Almost all shades of it are in demand, especially the medium and very bright blue.

Applique embroidery in rather large patterns will be seen on house gowns, and, if artistically done, it will not be out of place in the street. It is very effective.

Round, close-fitting, almost flat bonnets are quite as popular as ever. Many of the new modes are shaped almost exactly like a soup-plate, slightly pressed together at the sides.

Breakfast gowns are made of all kinds of plain, printed, and figured woolens; some capital models are in red vigogue, with full fronts of black silk and sash and bows of black ribbon.

You may have your gown high enough in the neck to choke you or rolled away comfortably (to show your throat if it's a pretty one) and still be in the fashion.

VERSATILE GLADSTONE.

He Knew All About the Article for He Wrote It.

An anecdote is told of Mr. Gladstone which illustrates strikingly the versatility and breath of knowledge of that remarkable man. Two personal friends of Mr. Gladstone once laid a plan to amuse themselves and play a joke upon him.

They were to discuss in his presence some subject of which he might be presumed to be ignorant, and then, having pretended to disagree decidedly, to appeal to Mr. Gladstone to settle the point. The fun was to come when he was forced to confess that there was one subject which he had not studied.

This plan they carried out; but it was not so easy to find the topic on which Mr. Gladstone must confess himself "stumped." At last there was discovered in an old newspaper an article on Chinese chess. The description of the game had been copied from a well-known magazine. This seemed promising.

The conspirators studied the article assiduously until they had become thoroughly familiar with it. Then they waited for their opportunity. It came when they were invited to a dinner where Mr. Gladstone was to be present. Seated on each side of their intended victim, by arrangement with the host, they began to put their scheme in operation.

Mr. Gladstone had maintained his reputation throughout the evening for being thoroughly acquainted with not only the leading questions of the day, but every subject which had been thus far introduced by those around him. His neighbors on either side began to discuss games of skill and chance generally.

Every few minutes one or the other would appeal to Mr. Gladstone to clear up some particularly complicated point or disputed question. Between them they skillfully led the conversation up to Chinese chess and soon found their opportunity to argue somewhat warmly in regard to a certain matter connected with the game.

They had studied the article so closely that they repeated much of it almost verbatim. Mr. Gladstone seemed interested, but said nothing. The two jokers, inwardly congratulating themselves for their success, continued the conversation with more animation than ever.

The host, who had been taken into the secret, was an amused spectator of what he thought was his honored guest's embarrassment.

When they had finished their mock battle Mr. Gladstone, who had not uttered a word, took a sip of coffee, replaced the cup in the saucer and remarked, pleasantly:

"Gentlemen, I observe that you have been reading an article on Chinese chess in the —— Review, which I wrote!"

Bergen's Asthma Cure Did It.

Evansville, Ind., Dec. 20, 1889.
Dr. J. W. Bergen, Petersburg, Ind.:
Dear Sir—It is with pleasure that I testify to the virtue of your Asthma Cure. I had been a sufferer for years, and had almost come to the conclusion that there was no cure for asthma; but your remedy was recommended and I commenced taking it last June, and have not had an attack since, and I feel that the cure is permanent and complete. I hope that all asthmatics will give it a trial, as I firmly believe it is a specific. Truly yours,

Salvini's Pleasing Performance at Wheeler's.

The Charity Ball Next Week—A Great Specialty Company—General Dramatic Notes.

Alexander Salvini, the young romantic actor, appeared at Wheeler's last evening in Don Caesar de Bazan. A large-sized audience filled the house, and the performance was well received.

Salvini is an actor of great strength and ability, and his work was something in the nature of a surprse. He is supported by a strong company and all the characters were well taken.

The Three Guardsmen will be presented to-night.

When the Charity Ball was first played at Daniel Frohman's Lyceum theater it achieved what only a very small percentage of the plays produced in New York can be credited with—a success with critics and auditors alike. This was on the night of Nov. 19, 1889, and until May 4, following, the play was seen by a succession of crowded houses. Two hundred performances were given before the engagements that had been made long before compelled the company to go away for its usual spring tour. During this trip and those that have followed it, the play has been the favorite one of the company's repertoire, and has been called for more frequently by local managers the country over than any two of the other plays.

Daniel Frohman showed the judgment, the penetration, that have put him at the very head and front of American managers when he brought about the colaboration of the two men whose combined efforts gave to the playgoers such a drama as The Wife, Lord Chumley, and The Charity Ball. The one, David Belasco, a clever stage manager and adapter, knowing the stage in its every aspect, able to construct a scene, or a series of scenes, that could not fail to be effective when viewed from the front; the second, Henry C. DeMille, a litterateur whose attainments in other fields than the drama showed Mr. Frohman that he had found the man to write brilliant, sparkling dialogue, or pathetic lines that would sieze hold of the heartstrings of an audience and make them cry, "This, this is nature."

Of the three plays written by these gentlemen for Mr. Frohman, The Charity Ball is the best. Natural causes may have led up to this, as it was the last of the three, or it may have been the result of fortunate chance; but the fact remains that in The Charity Ball we have perhaps as satisfying a play as any now before the public. It will be presented at Wheeler's opera house next Wednesday evening.

The Boston Howard Anthenaeum Co.

During the last five years this company has represented more specialty artists and better ones than any other similar organization. They will be at the People's all next week. Large salaries have been paid, and altogether the attractions appearing under this title have been almost, if not quite, as expensive as any amusing entertainment that has been laid before the public. The list of artists now with the company, with one or two exceptions, is composed of people never before in Toledo. Among these is Miss Ena Bertoldi, scarce in her teens, whose feats in balancing are said to be wonderful. Next in importance comes the youthful Bavarian juggler, Kara, whose performance is described as marvelous.

The English sketch team, James and Lucy Allison, who make their first American tour, are vocalists and dancers of rare skill. Melville and Stetson, vocalists and dialect artists, have appeared in Toledo before, their last engagement being with Havlin's Pair of Jacks company.

The brothers, Bratz, introduce many feats which are original with these two athletes. Golden and Quigg, the Irish comedians, indulge in songs, dances and witticisms. Among the musical acts, those introduced by the eccentric comedians, Falke and Semons, are described as quite original, especially in regard to musical instruments employed. Another strong feature of the entertainment is the ventriloquist, A. O. Duncan. Mr. Duncan does an original and surprising act. He has been seen in Toledo before, the last time being with the Kiralfys two years ago. Eddy and Josie Evans give an interesting specimen of the difference at Yale and Vassar colleges, and Fulgora, Europe's greatest transfigurator, makes his first appearance with this company, and will be seen at the People's theater next Monday evening.

The Wilburs.

The presentation of the bright comic opera Princess To-To, by the Wilburs was greeted with another packed house at the People's theater last evening and the performance was altogether creditable. At the matinee this afternoon Dorothy was repeated and Erminie will be presented this evening.

The business of this company for the week has been phenomenal and they will always be welcome. The performance of the Wilburs is not of a high class, and none of the people show any great ability. But the company is large, the girls pretty, the costumes elegant and the performances please the audience and there lies the secret of their success.

Dramatic Notes.

The Wilburs will give a concert at the People's theater to-morrow evening.

Margaret Mather is soon to be here, and will undoubtedly be well received.

Wm. Gillettee has been compelled to stop all work, as his health is failing rapidly.

It is rumored that Patti will give Mascagni's new opera, "Friend Fritz," before she leaves this country.

Bernhardt's successor in point of talent at the Comedie Francaise is Mlle. Dudlay, who has risen from the bottom of the dramatic ladder to near the top.

Emma V. Sheredan is dramatizing Warren's Ten Thousand a Year for Mr. Mansfield. He thinks the part of Tittlebat Titmouse has many great opportunities.

Alabama, Augustus Thomas' successful American drama, tells a story of southern life—American in theme, in treatment, in character and location. It is simply and poetically told, and has the idyllic framing of vines and mosses and tropic vegetation. It will shortly be seen in this city.

In the Ducal theater in Carlsruhe no actor is allowed to get up and bow after he is dead, and the only time when he can receive flowers over the footlights is when he reappears after a long illness, or when he is celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of his connection with the theater.

Salvini has been playing to big business throughout the country, especially good for a young star, and a large part of this is due to the management he has received by W. M. Wilkison, a former Toledo man, and A. W. Cooley, his press agent. Both men formerly worked on Toledo newspapers.

Successes are the rule, not the exception, with Daniel Frohman and his lyceum theater, and it is almost a certainty that the coming performance of The Charity Ball will be the last time that piece will ever be seen here, as Mr. Frohman has already a new play, with which to equip his traveling company for next season's work.

IS LIFE A FAILURE?

If you are not in good health the answer is yes. Let us tell you how thousands have regained lost health; and what thousands have done you can do. Your constitution is not strong; your system, unable to resist disease, cries for help. Confidence in long tried medicines is destroyed and courage forsakes you. Then, dear friend, deem this appeal merciful and heed it, for it has brought to thousands like yourself the priceless boon of health when hope itself was almost hopeless. Send to your nearest druggist for a bottle of the great Food Medicine, Scott's Emulsion, which is a preparation of emulsified pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil, combined with the hypophosphites of Lime and Soda. But be sure you get the genuine Emulsion, prepared only by Scott & Bowne, manufacturing chemists of New York, as its popularity has induced many cheap and worthless substitutes to be offered solely because of the large profits they afford. Then use this great remedy faithfully, persistently, patiently, until you can see that it has taken hold of the wasting tissues of your body, relaxed your cough and stayed the ravages of incipient consumption or fortified your system against the misery and exhaustion of Aenemia. And then keep on the right track, continuing to use this great food remedy until the new man, the new woman, the new child, all bless the day when they first heard of it.

THE CENSUS.

Washington, Jan. 30.—The house committee on the eleventh census met to-day and adjourned until next week when they will probably begin consideration of the several measures before it.

THE STRANGE CASE.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 30.—The grand jury did not finish the taking of testimony to-day in the Mitchell murder case.

PLACED IN BOLD TYPE.

Ben Butler's Book Has Been Issued.

He Reviews the Porter Case and Denies That Grant Was Drunk in Front of Petersburg.

Boston, Jan. 30.—"The Autobiography and Personal Reminiscences of Major General Benjamin F. Butler," or "Butler's book," is issued. The book is dedicated "To the Good and Brave Soldiers of the Grand Army of the Republic."

In his preface the general gives as one reason for the publication, "To correct much wrong done to myself by a prejudiced misrepresentation of facts and circumstances as to my own acts in the service of the country." A casual review of its contents would seem to convey the impression that this is its main object. The author expresses the hope that he may live long enough to answer any misstatements hereafter made against its subject matter.

Gen Butler asserts positively that Salmon P. Chase sent a friend to him at Fortress Monroe to solicit him to accept the vice presidency nomination of the republican party in case he (Chase) secured the first place; and that Simon Cameron made a similar proposition to him in behalf of Mr. Lincoln less than three weeks afterwards. He quotes the conversation and gives the reasons for his refusal of both offers.

He maintains, with documents, his position taken in the controversy over the conduct of the late Admiral Porter at New Orleans and declares that the latter acted untruthfully and villainously through the whole transaction of the capture and surrender of the fort. He also charges Admiral Porter and the latter's subordinates with the failure of the powder boat plan at Fort Fisher. He brands as utterly false the charge of Gen. W. F. Smith that Grant was drunk before Petersburg and criticises Smith's charge severely.

The general closes his work with a summary of things done by him and "proven by the narrative" in his military capacity, which were of service to the country.

Briefly these are: "By foresight and energy getting Massachusetts militia ready so that they were first to the defense of Washington; seizing Annapolis and opening the way for transportation of troops to the capital; preventing an assault upon Washington from Harper's Ferry by fortifying Relay House Heights; holding Baltimore and thus preventing the secession of Maryland; applying the contraband principle to slaves and thus making the emancipation proclamation possible; seizing and fortifying Newport News, thereby keeping through the war an open waterway for transportation of troops and supplies to Richmond; capturing Forts Hatteras and Clark, making practicable the holding of the coast sound; raising over 6,000 men without bounties or impressments; assisting with these in the opening of the Mississippi; capture of New Orleans; holding Louisiana and enforcing there respect for the government; rescuing New Orleans from yellow fever; inaugurating the policy of arming colored troops; devising, organizing and perfecting the strategy for campaign against Richmond by means of an intrenched camp near the city at Bermuda Hundred; assistance in the capture of Petersburg and Richmond; designing and constructing the Dutch Gap canal, an available military and public work."

Finally he says: "In all military movements I never met with disaster nor uselessly sacrificed the lives of my men.

"In my congressional career my proudest boast is that through my effort the legal tender greenback was made constitutional money and I believe soon it will be the only money in the United States."

ROBBED HIS FATHER'S CORPSE.

Incredible Depravity of Jethro Martin, the Martinsburg (Mo.) Patricide.

Mexico, Mo., Jan. 30.—It was developed to-day that Jethro Martin, who killed his father at Martinsburg, is not half-witted.

He had already squandered $3,000 of his father's money and demanded more. At the inquest it was shown that Martin, after killing his father, robbed the body of a gold watch and $5. He even stole the shoes off his dead father's feet, leaving his old ones sitting near the body. He then ransacked the house.

CONFEDERATE DISABILITIES.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Gen. H. V. Boynton, than whom a braver soldier did not draw a saber on the union side, and than whom a more chivalrous gentleman does not live, has a communication in the Washington Post to-day recommending the immediate removal of disabilities of ex-confederates. Gen. Boynton compares with such soldiers as Kerwin, whose bloody shirt objection to such legislation was printed Monday in the New York Recorder, about as Caesar would compare with a Kansas red-leg.

A LOAD OF SMALLPOX.

Serious State of Affairs in San Francisco.

Thirty Cases in the Quarantine Station and Another Boat Load Expected Next Week.

San Francisco, Jan. 30.—It looks now as though a majority of the Chinese cooped up at the quarantine station on Angel Island will come down with the smallpox.

It was reported yesterday that there are 30 cases, although an official count gives only a dozen. This disparity is due to the fact that the Chinese conceal the presence of diseases as long as possible, as they dread medical treatment by whites.

The quarantine officer refuses to permit six customs officers at the station to return to this city, holding that they would spread contagion. The militia still maintain the dead line and no quarantined persons are allowed near it. Six European passengers, who are confined with the Chinese are making great complaints over lack of suitable accommodations.

Another China steamer is expected next Thursday and if smallpox be aboard the Pacific Mail company will have to furnish a hulk as a lazaret, as the quarantine station cannot accommodate any more.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for over fifty years by millions of mothers for their children while teething, with perfect success. THE GRID-IRONS.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Word has been received here that Secretary Foster will leave Fortress Monroe to-day by special steamer en route to Washington where he will attend the annual dinner of the Grid-Iron club at the Arlington. A TRUTH FROM "TRUTH."

The New York Central is really first-class in all its appointments. Think of it, it has four tracks laid with the heaviest of steel rails in the most substantial manner, and when you are sleeping or lounging around in one of their superb Wagner cars, and flying along at the rate of nearly a mile a minute, as some of their fast expresses do, you will hardly realize that you are moving, so excellent is the permanent way. A short time ago a special train made the run from New York to Buffalo at the rate of a mile a minute the entire distance.

HE GOT A DIVORCE

AND WAS THEN MARRIED TO HIS FIRST LOVE WITHIN AN HOUR.

Three Former Toledo People Are the Principals in a Recent Social Sensation.

The divorce records of a neighboring county, over the Michigan line, furnishes us the cue to quite a sensational separation and subsequent marriage, in which former Toledo people were the principal parties interested. The gentleman in the case was none other than our old-time friend "Al" Busch, who made many warm friends while attending school in Toledo during 1887 and '88. Al's step-father is a thrifty country merchant, doing business at the four corners bearing his name in Lenawee county, Michigan. While young Busch was diligently pursuing his studies in Toledo, he had for a classmate and acquaintance a lovely-looking young lady, named Lucy Souls, whose parents then resided on North Erie street, but have since removed from Toledo to Chicago, where her father travels for an implement house.

Neither young Busch nor Miss Lucy had experienced the strange, thrilling sensation of genuine love before, so that it took them some time to realize what was the matter. But when vacation came and "Al" was about to take leave for home, they analyzed their feelings and became engaged. Vacation passed slowly, both returned to school, and then time sped on golden wings with the affectionate Lucy and the ardent "Al." But their school-day happiness was destined to be cut short. Lucy's seat at school became vacant with increased frequency, until finally her name was dropped from the roll call. The joyful and festive Xmas season was dreary, indeed, in the Souls household. The zeal of the young daughter for study had occasioned a nervous strain and lack of exercise that were fraught with terrible results. Lucy's anxious lover was startled to learn from the family physician that stomach disease with bronchial catarrh and nervous heart trouble would probably render it unsafe for Lucy to marry, at least for years.

Although the devoted "Al" was sad and dreary for a few brief months, yet when the spring sunshine called forth fragrant buds and blossoms he fancied his heart yearned toward one Carrie Flint. Carrie's father was a milk seller then on the edge of town, but now in northern Michigan, and Carrie was rather stylish looking and finally caught Busch by pretending sympathy for Lucy's almost hopeless condition. Time went on and poor patient Lucy grew worse. "Al" met Carrie both at school and church, and through her clever and coquetish scheme he was finally led to propose and they were married. From the first time he failed to get money from home, up to the granting of a divorce a short time since, the daily life of Busch was made miserable. A few months ago unhappy "Al" found out that Lucy, his old love, had been almost miraculously cured by a wonderful diet chart of what to eat and drink, used in connection with specific stomach and nerve remedies and the inhalation of medicated gases. Not satisfied with the statement of Lucy's parents, now in Chicago, and herself, that she was absolutely well, "Al" sought out the physician's office, on Summit street, between Oak and Orange, and ascertained of Dr. Kalkhoff, the great European specialist, that Lucy was entirely cured. Busch then secured a divorce and one hour after married Miss Souls, and has now gone into business with his step-father in Michigan.

will be paid for a recipe enabling us to make WOLFF'S ACME BLACKING at such a price that the retailer can profitably sell it at 10c. a bottle. At present the retail price is 20c.

This offer is open until January 1st, 1893. For particulars address the undersigned.

ACME BLACKING is made of pure alcohol, other liquid dressings are made of water. Water costs nothing. Alcohol is dear. Who can show us how to make it without alcohol so that we can make ACME BLACKING as cheap as water dressing, or put it in fancy packages like many of the water dressings, and then charge for the outside appearance instead of charging for the contents of the bottle?

WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

PIK-RON

is the name of a paint of which a 25c. bottle is enough to make six scratched and dulled cherry chairs look like newly finished mahoganies. It will do many other remarkable things which no other paint can do. All retailers sell it.
